

Officials Issue Call For Stiff Health Ruling

Inspection Of Milk Is Being Urged

Food-Handling Law Also Cited

A call was issued Monday evening for the creation of a tighter health ordinance in Circleville, especially regarding milk inspections.

Appearing before Circleville Kiwanis Club was Russell Palm, general manager of Pickaway Dairy Cooperative Association, who spoke in behalf of county milk buyers and for two city officials.

The officials were Circleville Mayor Thurman I. Miller and Dr. E. L. Montgomery, city councilman and member of council's health committee.

Need for tight milk inspections in Circleville, proponents of milk ordinance, declared, pivots on the following points:

1. No Circleville bottler now is permitted to sell his milk in any of counties surrounding Pickaway because it does not meet state and-or health codes;

2. Only about half of the county's whole milk producers now are able to meet state and federal health requirements;

3. One out of every 30 persons in Pickaway County now carries Brucellosis, commonly known in human beings as "undulant fever," in animals as "bang's disease" or "malta fever."

4. Producers meeting the proposed health ordinance would receive an average of $1.20 per hundredweight more for their raw milk than they now are paid because they would be producing Grade A milk rather than the Grade B under present conditions.

THE SPOKESMAN before Kiwanis declared that local bottlers are not permitted to sell their milk outside Pickaway County because the milk comes from "unapproved sources."

He stressed that cleanliness rules are followed religiously by the major bottlers here but that the dairies have no control over production conditions on the farm.

On the same subject, Palm declared that his firm has sent back to the producer "as much as 60 to 70 cans of milk a day"

Truman, Dewey Off On Another Oratory Jaunt

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 26—More than 20 thousand Hoosiers roared a welcome to President Truman here today.

The crowd was massed in a huge open space before an elevated railway siding near the station.

Bands blared in the early morning sun and the crowd set off a sustained ovation as the President stepped from his train to a speaker's platform to attack again the Republicans and what he termed "the Republican-controlled press."

"I have been travelling up and down the country telling the people what the issues of this campaign are. You don't get these facts from the Republican-controlled press."

Mr. Truman struck at those who would block this country from being a haven for Europe's displaced persons. He said:

"There are a lot of people who want to forget that their own folks haven't been in this country very long."

The President said:

"THAT REPUBLICAN Congress said, 'Oh, No,'—and waited three years before they did anything to let those people in. Then they passed a law to let 200,000 in where I had asked for admission of 400,000."

Meanwhile, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, in position to have a

5 Contests Top Ballot Facing Pickaway Voters

Five contests in top Pickaway County offices along with two countywide questions—a $100,000 tax levy and a $210,000 bond issue—have stirred political interest here as Nov. 2 poll day edges nearer.

Hottest battle among office-seekers will rage around two seats for Pickaway County commissioner where John Keller, Democrat incumbent, is out for reelection and Wayne Hoover is retiring on his expired term.

Three others in the commissioner battle are William J. Goode, Democrat; Richard H. Hedges and Fred E. Moeller, both Republicans.

In the prosecuting attorney's office, Republican Kenneth M. Robbins, the incumbent, is being challenged by Guy G. Cline of Ashville, a newcomer in the local political picture. Cline is a Democrat.

Another newcomer, Edward M. Amey, Republican, is seeking to oust Arthur L. Wilder, Democrat incumbent, for the post of clerk of the common pleas court.

ON THE non-partisan ballot, Incumbent Judge Sterling M. Lamb in probate court, a Republican, will face Democrat George Young, a Circleville attorney.

Mother Killed By Rushing Train

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26—Police reported today that a 30-year-old woman was killed by a train last night after her husband grabbed their 20-month old son from her arms and desperately tried to yank the woman off the tracks.

John H. Little, of nearby Dorsey, told police that he was driving home when he saw his wife rush out on the tracks with the child.

Little said he grabbed the infant and tried to pull his wife off the tracks but she was killed before his eyes.

The debate occurred after the opening of the new session of parliament by King George VI with the promise that Britain will build up its defenses in this "troubled world."

Eden berated the Labor government for introducing controversial domestic legislation while the international outlook is serious.

He served notice that if the government nationalizes the steel industry and Britain's Tories win the next election they will repeal nationalization.

Liquor Director Dale Dunifon asked the Federal Department of Internal Revenue for the lists to check against the liquor department's file of liquor permit holders. The federal bureau did not furnish the lists—but did remind Dunifon that the lists were public records and could be copied.

Copied they were. Liquor department agents and stenographers descended on the revenue offices and began the laborious

Educators Dropping Option

Northend Athletic Field Idea Cools

Circleville board of education Tuesday was right back where it started regarding its northend building program.

Option on the Zwicker property is being dropped. Although it cost the board only $50 in cash, nearly a year in time was consumed by ponderings.

The Zwicker option, which was to have expired Tuesday, retained a 15-acre plot south of Northridge Road at city limits for $12,000. Board members said Monday they felt the plot failed to justify specifications.

However, an attempt to renegotiate on a new option to include an additional 150-foot frontage left out of the original Zwicker option maybe sought by the board members. Board officials said they would offer only $1 for the entire option.

OPEN DISCUSSION at the Monday special session revealed board members in disagreement concerning the program.

Agreement was reached on only three points—construction of buildings to house an industrial arts workshop, gymnasium and a northend elementary school.

Disagreement was revealed in discussion sitting need for an athletic field in conjunction with the building program.

Principal aim in optioning the Zwicker estate and obtaining verbal options on a combination of lands owned by John Goeller, Moats and Klingensmith in the northend has been for the purpose of erecting a new elementary school, flanked by an athletic field.

Plans at that time called for either the industrial arts building or the gymnasium (or a combination of both) to be situated on the present football field, necessitating a new field.

Monday's discussions boiled down to the original plan—probable sale of lands nearby the high school building.

Virgil Cress, board clerk, reported these lands include the Corwin Street parking lot south of the high school building and

Pinching Is OK In One Jap Town

TOKYO, Oct. 26—Pinching a woman in public will get you into trouble with the law—in Japan or practically anywhere else.

But not in Ito, fishing village southeast of Tokyo, when the local Shinto shrine holds its three-day annual festival.

On those days, men can pinch women with impunity. All they get is an embarrassed giggle.

It's a custom based on a age-long tradition, say the village elders.

And the town's boys like it. No objections have been heard from the girls, either.

BAND TO LEAD OFF FESTIVITIES

Batch Of Prizes Readied For Annual Spook Parade

A terrifying host of hobgoblins, spooks and witches will descend on Circleville Friday for the annual Halloween Parade.

Sponsored by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, this year's parade is designed to attract nearly every youngster in Pickaway County.

Every costumed youngster participating in the parade will be awarded a prize, and special prizes totalling $157.50 will be awarded in Ted Lewis Park.

Six prizes totalling $12 will be awarded best costumed youngsters in the age groups of from "up to six-year-old," 6-10, 10-14 and 14-18-years-old. Adults will have a crack at the prize money, also, awarded on the same basis for their costumes.

Best costumed group in the parade will receive $10, while second place group will be awarded $7.50 and third place $5.

Ten prizes of $3.50 are to be awarded for "type" entries, including prettiest, ugliest, most unique costumes, best impersonation, best decorated bicycle, wagon or doll carriage, best animal, oldest person in parade and the youngest.

Grand prize of $10 will be awarded to the outstanding individual in the parade.

Grade school classes will be competing in another kind of contest Friday, with cash prizes to be awarded for best Halloween posters. Posters must be turned in to George Griffith before noon Friday.

Poster prizes are split into three categories, one for first and second grades, second for third and fourth grades and third for fifth and sixth grades. First prize in each category is $5, second $3 and third $2.

"Spooks" are to meet on East Mound street near the postoffice at 6:30 p. m. Friday.

The parade is to be headed by Circleville high school marching band, directed by Truman Eberly.

And even the band may be in costume. They were to take a vote on the matter Tuesday or Wednesday.

George Fishpaw will be parade marshal and Don Henkle is to be ringmaster for festivities during judging at the park.

Committee in charge of the affair is headed by Arthur Marr. He is to be assisted by Paul White, D. E. McDonald, Herbert Fry and John Magill.

Lausche, Herbert Get Personal In Final Campaigns

TOLEDO, Oct. 26 — President Truman brought his campaign into Ohio today, and—like it or lump it—Ex-Gov. Frank J. Lausche stumped the state with him.

The President's 17-car special train entered the state at Toledo. There and at Sandusky and Elyria the President was to make speeches, with his main address scheduled for Cleveland tonight.

Gov. Thomas Herbert, seeking reelection on the Republican ticket against Lausche, attacked the latter a few weeks ago when, on the President's first campaign swing through Ohio, Lausche "embraced" Truman in Akron and, said Herbert, thereby embraced the New Deal.

The gubernatorial election still rates generally as a toss-up.

Herbert and Lausche both waxed a bit personal last night.

Herbert, speaking in Dayton, asserted that Lausche, as governor, had been "publicly condemning but privately wooing the gambling interests in Ohio."

Lausche, in a series of Cleveland meetings, charged in turn that $40 million in federal highway aid was lost to Ohio because the Herbert administration had no acceptable plans—and that it was "resisting the process of acquiring facts be-

British Get Loan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—England signed a $310,000,000 loan agreement with the Economic Cooperation Administration today. ECA said that the loan will be used "primarily to finance the purchase of machinery and raw materials."

Those rescued and missing were from the Trawler Colona, from Reedville, Va., which was struck by the tanker near Hooper's Island, about 85 miles from Baltimore.

Two Coast Guard cutters and a Coast Guard plane were ordered to the scene immediately.

5 Feared Missing As Boats Collide

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26—Sixteen men were reported rescued and five missing today when a fishing trawler was sunk in Chesapeake Bay in a collision with the Tanker Tulla Hama.

Revolt Nipped

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 26—The Paraguayan government announced suppression of a short-lived military revolt today with surrender of its alleged leader, Col. Carlos Montanaro.

West To Give Reds More Time To Lift Blockade

PARIS, Oct. 26—The Big Three Western Powers were reported agreed today to give Russia additional time to lift the Berlin blockade despite Soviet veto of a compromise resolution.

Reliable quarters said the Westerners reached a tacit agreement on such a move before asking for a formal indictment of the Soviets as a menace to peace.

The Security Council, where the veto was cast yesterday, has moved on today to consideration of the Palestine problem.

While this group copes with the Holy Land issue, the political committee renews deliberations on Greece.

The warfare between the Greek government and Communist rebels is expected to lead to further harsh words between the East and West.

FOUR OF the Big Five, with Russia only in opposition, already have agreed on steps to prolong the life of the United Nations Balkan Commission.

Regarding the Berlin issue, it is understood that American Secretary of State Marshall, British Foreign Secretary Bevin and French Foreign Minister Schuman will canvass the specific next move on Berlin later today.

It is known that the French are somewhat reluctant to hurl the Berlin issue directly into the General Assembly. They may try to prevail on the Britons and Americans to keep the problem in the Security Council despite the obvious fact that any resolution there will mean Soviet non-participation and finally a veto.

But Tuesday was another day. Bandsmen were to have returned to their rehearsals, priming for the Friday night Halloween Parade and the big event of the year Nov. 12, when they will travel to Washington C. H. with the football team. The Nov. 12 halftime show promises to be the top performance of the year.

The Circleville band turned in topnotch performances in nine separate events in three days during Pumpkin Show festivities, including concerts, parades, Band Festival and a half-time performance at the Circleville-Wilmington football game.

Many an "outsider" to Circleville was heard wondering aloud about "this local band." It invariably stood out above all others no matter what musical organization was on display.

None of the band members was affected more than their director, Truman Eberly, who, in addition to supervising two marching performances on Circleville football field, scurried over the streets to synchronize the various programs to his schedule.

Also leading the list with tired arches were Delores Elsea, high stepping drum major for the band, and her majorettes, Peggy Davis, Joan Wilkinson, Marlene Mancini, Jackie Smith, Mary Ellen Reid and Sue Brown.

Prefabs Eyed

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26 — Cincinnati city council studied a $500,000 program today for the construction of 100 prefabricated houses under a four-point plan suggested by its planning committee.

Liquor licenses are issued from year to year. When the permits come up for renewal, Dunifon's lists will show—at least in some cases—which permittees have paid federal license on slot machines. Those permittees will be refused renewals.

State Liquormen Now Know Who Own Slots

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26 — Hundreds—possibly thousands—of slot machines in Ohio taverns went into hiding today as the state liquor department found itself with a new weapon to combat the one-armed bandits.

The weapon was simply a sheaf of paper—but on those pages were listed the names of 4,563 Ohioans who had paid federal taxes on slot machines in the last year.

Liquor Director Dale Dunifon asked the Federal Department of Internal Revenue for the lists to check against the liquor department's file of liquor permit holders. The federal bureau did not furnish the lists—but did remind Dunifon that the lists were public records and could be copied.

Copied they were. Liquor department agents and stenographers descended on the revenue offices and began the laborious process. When completed, Dunifon found that 568 slots were licensed in the Cincinnati district, 596 in the Columbus area, 1,121 around Cleveland, and more than twice that many—2,260—in the Toledo area.

Today those names are being checked against the permit lists. Dunifon conceded that it was a tough job. He stated:

"Many of the slots are licensed under fictitious names or often fictitious addresses. Nonetheless, we expect to find pay dirt."

Dunifon refused to say exactly what his next moves would be. He hinted, however, that two lines of attack were open.

First might come a series of raids on the premises holding both liquor permits and federal licenses on slot machines.

The director indicated that he did not believe such raids would be more than moderately successful. The slots, he said, undoubtedly were in hiding or would be by the time the lists had the liquor department had the lists, Dunifon said, obviously has not been overlooked by those cheaters who evade the Ohio liquor laws by exhibiting gambling devices.

But his second possibility of action, while slower, may also be more certain. Briefly, Dunifon plans in some cases to sit back and wait.

Liquor licenses are issued from year to year. When the permits come up for renewal, Dunifon's lists will show—at least in some cases—which permittees have paid federal license on slot machines. Those permittees will be refused renewals.

Inspection Of Milk Is Being Urged

because the sediment and bacteria counts were too high. Backers of a city milk and-or health ordinance in Circleville declared the plan would call for the employment of a fulltime inspector who would meet specifications set down by both state and federal departments of health.

This inspector's salary and operation expense would come from a charge made on the whole milk—at the rate of two cents per hundredweight. The ordinance would set up requirements as to handling of milk on the farm such as clean milk houses, milk-cooling facilities, location of milking areas with reference to other livestock, sanitation regarding milking utensils, sterilization of all cans and other equipment. At the same time, each dairy herd would be required to submit to periodic tests to locate any Brucellosis, tuberculosis and mastitis, or other disease which might be transferred to human beings.

PALM DECLARED that "there probably will be an upheaval from some farmers against the idea. But they will make more money in the long run, will protect their community. They will have to clean up or get out. No progressive farmer will object to the idea; it keeps them on their toes." The proposed tests would vary. Some inspections will determine conditions in which cows are milked and the product handled. Other tests will be made at the plant where both bacteria and sedimentation tests are taken. The officials declare the proposed regulation should go further than merely milk inspections.

They argued that the ordinance should include inspection of all food products, food handlers in groceries and restaurants or any eating place. These inspections would not only cover food preparation and serving areas but working personnel as well.

It was indicated that city officials have called for a conference here within the next two weeks with state health department officials to further explain legal technicalities concerning the proposed ordinance.

Shell hard-cooked eggs under running water, say the experts. As soon as the egg is cooked, cool it immediately under running water to loosen the shell, prevent over-cooking and make handling easier. Crack the shell by tapping against a hard edge or with a spoon, then loosen it by rolling the egg between the hands. Hold the egg under water and begin peeling at the large end where there is an air space under the shell. The cold water helps to ease off the shell and washes away any bits left off the white.

LAUSCHE charged Herbert's administration "permitted its most important function, the preparation of (highway) plans, to break down" and added:

A $5,060 damage suit has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court against a "Mrs. Carl Haffner" arising from a two-car automobile crash Oct. 7, 1948, in Route 56, it was alleged.

Suit is being brought by a Columbus attorney for the plaintiff, Dale E. Bean, who reports he was injured in the accident. The defendant is named on three points of alleged negligence.

Dewey's advisers were convinced that he would not engage in a slugging match with Mr. Truman at this late stage in the campaign. The President's charge that dictator-like forces exist in the Republican Party, made last night in Chicago, were not expected to draw a reply in kind from Dewey.

Inspection Of Milk Is Being Urged

because the sediment and bacteria counts were too high.

Backers of a city milk and health ordinance in Circleville declared the plan would call for the employment of a fulltime inspector who would meet specifications set down by both state and federal departments of health.

This inspector's salary and operation expense would come from a charge made on the whole milk—at the rate of two cents per hundredweight.

The ordinance would set up requirements as to handling of milk on the farm such as clean milk houses, milk-cooling facilities, location of milking areas with reference to other livestock, sanitation regarding milking utensils, sterilization of all cans and other equipment.

At the same time, each dairy herd would be required to submit to periodic tests to locate any Brucellosis, tuberculosis and mastitis, or other disease which might be transferred to human beings.

PALM DECLARED that "there probably will be an upheaval from some farmers against the idea. But they will make more money in the long run, will protect their community. They will have to clean up or get out. No progressive farmer will object to the idea; it keeps them on their toes."

The proposed tests would vary. Some inspections will determine conditions in which cows are milked and the product handled. Other tests will be made at the plant where both bacteria and sedimentation tests are taken.

The officials declare the proposed regulation should go further than merely milk inspections.

They argued that the ordinance should include inspection of all food products, food handlers in groceries and restaurants or any eating place.

These inspections would not only cover food preparation and serving areas but working personnel as well.

It was indicated that city officials have called for a conference here within the next two weeks with state health department officials to further explain legal technicalities concerning the proposed ordinance.

Shell hard-cooked eggs under running water, say the experts. As soon as the egg is cooked, cool it immediately under running water to loosen the shell, prevent over-cooking and make handling easier. Crack the shell by tapping against a hard edge or with a spoon, then loosen it by rolling the egg between the hands. Hold the egg under water and begin peeling at the large end where there is an air space under the shell. The cold water helps to ease off the shell and washes away any bits left off the white.

LAUSCHE charged Herbert's administration "permitted its most important function, the preparation of (highway) plans, to break down" and added:

A $5,000 damage suit has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court against a "Mrs. Carl Haffner" arising from a two-car automobile crash Oct. 7, 1948, in Route 56, it was alleged.

Court attaches said the suit may misfire because of possible incorrect identification of the defendant's name. No such person is reported living at the address given on the petition.

Suit is being brought by a Columbus attorney for the plaintiff, Dale E. Bean, who reports he was injured in the accident. The defendant is named on three points of alleged negligence.

Night Said Worst Time For Mishaps

60 Pct. Fatalities Come After Dark

Sixty percent of Ohio highway deaths last year occurred at night even though after-dark driving accounted for only one-third of the daily travel.

This startling figure was disclosed by Sheriff Charles Radcliff in appealing to Pickaway County motorists and pedestrians to cooperate with the state's traffic safety program.

Radcliff said a study by the state highway department indicated that darkness greatly increased the possibility of death on the highway.

He said more than two-thirds of the pedestrian deaths on rural state highways last year occurred during the hour of darkness.

"When you drive, watch out for the walker who may not be watching out for himself," the sheriff urged. "And when you walk, watch out for the driver who may not be watching out for you."

Mac Offers Ships To Return Japs

TOKYO, Oct. 26—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today offered the Russians the use of American icebreakers to speed the return to Japan of an estimated 470,000 Jap prisoners still held by the Soviet.

The allied supreme commander also said he would give the Russians other technical assistance to permit repatriation transport operations through the winter.

Last winter the Russians suspended all operation of repatriation ships, pleading that winter condition rendered sea navigation impossible.

The letter pointed out that the Russians have failed for 16 consecutive months to meet the agreed upon monthly quota of 50,000 repatriates.

PAC Confident

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26—Jack Kroll, president of the CIO-PAC, was on record today with a prediction that President Truman would win next week's election and that the Democrats would take over the Congress.

FORMER U. S. Senator James W. Huffman (above) will speak at a Democratic rally at 8 p. m. Thursday in Circleville Memorial Hall. Democratic candidates for local offices also will attend.

City's Purchase Of Property Is Ruled Illegal

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—The city of Norwood's purchase of the Linwood Field property for $185,338 was held illegal today by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

The city had planned to use the site for a new source of water supply and other waterworks improvements.

In upsetting the sale, Ferguson returned findings for recovery against the former property owners, which would require them to return the purchase price.

He also found that James P. Mulford, former Norwood sinking fund trustee, must return $11,830 for commissions Ferguson said he collected on the illegal purchase.

A finding for return of $1,500 was made against William B. Peterman, member of the Norwood Civil Service Commission, which Peterman charged for professional services.

FERGUSON said that Mulford, when a member of the sinking fund commission, obtained options from the landowners of the Linwood area when it was recommended in an engineer's survey report for the site of the new waterworks improvements. The options, Ferguson said, were not authorized by any official source and were between the sellers and the James P. Mulford Co., a real estate firm.

The options, the auditor said, stipulated that in the event of sale to the city the sellers agreed to pay six percent commissions to Mulford.

Ferguson said the land later was purchased by the city through Mulford and without authorization of city council. Payments were made by City Auditor George E. Lyle from the waterworks mortgage revenue bond fund.

Robber Strips Man Of Shirt

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Harry Richard of Columbus lost his shirt—and he didn't lose it on the horses.

Richard was walking along a downtown Columbus street Sunday night when he was accosted by a man with a pistol, and ordered into an alley.

A few minutes later, Richard stepped out, minus his haberdashery and $27, but wearing a city workhouse issue shirt.

Police weren't making many guesses, but they did say Fred Gale, 45, and David Spears, 37, of Newark, walked away from their outside trusty jobs at the prison about 6 p. m. yesterday.

Laundrymen See Many Gadgets

CLEVELAND, Oct. 26—Gadget-lovers would enjoy the 61st annual convention and exhibit of the American Institute of Laundering which closes tonight in Cleveland's Public Hall.

Shirt folders operating on compressed air, pressing machines for pressing garments five at a time and button sewing machines for four and two-hole buttons are only a few of the machines on exhibition.

Ball point pens, nylon bags, oversize safety pins, and ultraviolet rays are some of the methods used to return laundry correctly marked.

Strain Dies In Ohio Chair

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Nathan Strain, 26, of Columbus, died last night in Ohio's electric chair at 8:10 for the rape-murder eight years ago of the 76-year-old spinster known as "The Little Red Hen of Fulton street."

Strain, sentenced last June for the slaying of Miss Alice Lauterbach, appeared only slightly nervous as he entered the death chamber and followed the Rev. Father C. V. Lucier, prison chaplain, through the last rites of the Catholic church. The stocky killer embraced the church less than a month ago.

Governor Thomas J. Herbert

Tom Herbert's opponent in the coming election is the man who preceded him in office. Compare the records of these two candidates and there is little doubt which one you'll vote for. Here is the score.

HERBERT:	HIS OPPONENT:
Reduced Sales Tax and several other taxes. Financed Soldiers' Bonus without special tax levy. Increased aid to public schools by $49,000,000. Appropriated $32,000,000 for welfare institutions. Completed or placed under contract, $23,000,000 of welfare building construction.	Promised Sales Tax reduction. Failed to recommend same to the legislature. Did nothing about the Bonus. Vetoed appropriation bills for public schools. Provided $27,000,000 for welfare institutions. Constructed or placed under contract, only $4,000,000 of the appropriation.
Reduced unwieldy state liquor inventory $17,000,000. Put all inspectors under civil service. Revoked 119 fake club permits. Awarded 800 highway project contracts to value of $61,655,773. Held 301 competitive civil service examinations. Approved only 4,680 provisional employees. Secured enactment of law for regulating strip mine. Increased state aid for control of brucellosis and other farm animal diseases. Paid to local divisions of government $208,872,793.	Left behind exorbitant inventory of unsalable brands of liquor. Failed to stop issuance of permits to fake clubs. Awarded 550 highway project contracts to value of $36,924,288. Held only 82 competitive civil service examinations. Approved 11,596 provisional employees. Talked about strip mine regulation. Offered no bill on same. Gave agriculture inadequate aid against farm animal diseases. Provided local subdivisions of government only $158,012,476.

Those records tell the story. You will certainly want to re-elect Tom Herbert. Vote also for Republican legislators. They are pledged to the same principles of efficiency, fairness and economy that enabled the Herbert administration to accomplish so much good for Ohio.

You've never had any trouble starting in Winter?

Aren't you forgetting?...

... Stop and think! Can't you recall one particular zero morning, when you stepped on the starter, and nothing happened?

Every winter, in Ohio, the AAA handles approximately two hundred thousand distress calls... from their members alone! So... you've been lucky if you haven't had winter starting trouble. But why not be safe, this year?

Guaranteed Starting is as simple as ABC. You get the actual written guarantee at Fall "change-over" time, when you change to winter-grade Sohio motor oil and gear oil, have your battery checked at 1.250 and have a Sohio gasoline in your tank. There's no extra charge. You keep the guarantee in force all winter long merely by your use of our gasolines and lubricants and your ordinary care. There are no tricks—no red tape. If your motor ever fails to start, we pay the garage starting service bill. It's as simple as that... and it's grand to have!

Here's all you do to get GUARANTEED STARTING!

- Change to a Sohio winter-grade motor oil
- Change to a Sohio winter-grade gear lube
- Use Sohio winter-grade gasoline
- Let us check your battery at 1.250

FERGUSON said that Mulford, when a member of the sinking fund commission, obtained options from the landowners of the Linwood area when it was recommended in an engineer's survey report for the site of the new waterworks improvements. The options, Ferguson said, were not authorized by any official source and were between the sellers and the James P. Mulford Co., a real estate firm.

The options, the auditor said, stipulated that in the event of sale to the city the sellers agreed to pay six percent commissions to Mulford.

Ferguson said the land later was purchased by the city through Mulford and without authorization of city council. Payments were made by City Auditor George E. Lyle from the waterworks mortgage revenue bond fund.

Robber Strips Man Of Shirt

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Harry Richard of Columbus lost his shirt—and he didn't lose it on the horses.

Richard was walking along a downtown Columbus street Sunday night when he was accosted by a man with a pistol, and ordered into an alley.

A few minutes later, Richard stepped out, minus his haberdashery and $27, but wearing a city workhouse issue shirt.

Police weren't making many guesses, but they did say Fred Gale, 45, and David Spears, 37, of Newark, walked away from their outside trusty jobs at the prison about 6 p. m. yesterday.

Laundrymen See Many Gadgets

CLEVELAND, Oct. 26—Gadget-lovers would enjoy the 61st annual convention and exhibit of the American Institute of Laundering which closes tonight in Cleveland's Public Hall.

Shirt folders operating on compressed air, pressing machines for pressing garments five at a time and button sewing machines for four and two-hole buttons are only a few of the machines on exhibition.

Ball point pens, nylon bags, oversize safety pins, and ultraviolet rays are some of the methods used to return laundry correctly marked.

Strain Dies In Ohio Chair

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Nathaniel Strain, 26, of Columbus, died last night in Ohio's electric chair at 8:10 for the rape-murder eight years ago of the 76-year-old spinster known as "The Little Red Hen of Fulton street."

Strain, sentenced last June for the slaying of Miss Alice Lauterbach, appeared only slightly nervous as he entered the death chamber and followed the Rev. Father C. V. Lucier, prison chaplain, through the last rites of the Catholic church. The stocky killer embraced the church less than a month ago.

Governor Thomas J. Herbert

Tom Herbert's opponent in the coming election is the man who preceded him in office. Compare the records of these two candidates and there is little doubt which one you'll vote for. Here is the score.

HERBERT:

Reduced Sales Tax and several other taxes. Financed Soldiers' Bonus without special tax levy. Increased aid to public schools by $49,000,000. Appropriated $32,000,000 for welfare institutions. Completed or placed under contract, $23,000,000 of welfare building construction.

Reduced unwieldy state liquor inventory $17,000,000. Put all inspectors under civil service. Revoked 119 fake club permits.

Awarded 800 highway project contracts to value of $61,653,773. Held 301 competitive civil service examinations. Approved only 4,680 provisional employees.

Secured enactment of law for regulating strip mine. Increased state aid for control of brucellosis and other farm animal diseases. Paid to local divisions of government $208,872,793.

HIS OPPONENT:

Promised Sales Tax reduction. Failed to recommend same to the legislature. Did nothing about the Bonus. Vetted appropriation bills for public schools. Provided $27,000,000 for welfare institutions. Constructed or placed under contract, only $4,000,000 of the appropriation.

Left behind exorbitant inventory of unsalable brands of liquor. Failed to stop issuance of permits to fake clubs.

Awarded 550 highway project contracts to value of $36,924,288. Held only 82 competitive civil service examinations. Approved 11,596 provisional employees.

Talked about strip mine regulation. Offered no bill on same. Gave agriculture inadequate aid against farm animal diseases. Provided local subdivisions of government only $158,012,476.

Aren't you forgetting?...

... Stop and think! Can't you recall one particular zero morning, when you stepped on the starter, and nothing happened?

Every winter, in Ohio, the AAA handles approximately two hundred thousand distress calls... from their members alone! So... you've been lucky if you haven't had winter starting trouble. But why not be safe, this year?

Guaranteed Starting is as simple as ABC. You get the actual written guarantee at Fall "change-over" time, when you change to winter-grade Sohio motor oil and gear oil, have your battery checked at 1.250 and have a Sohio gasoline in your tank. There's no extra charge. You keep the guarantee in force all winter long merely by your use of our gasolines and lubricants and your ordinary care. There are no tricks—no red tape. If your motor ever fails to start, we pay the garage starting service bill. It's as simple as that... and it's grand to have!

Here's all you do to get GUARANTEED STARTING!

- Change to a Sohio winter-grade motor oil
- Change to a Sohio winter-grade gear lube
- Use Sohio winter-grade gasoline
- Let us check your battery at 1.250

BIGGER ORE STOCK

AN ESTIMATE based on shipments which have been completed together with normal expectations for the remaining weeks of the shipping season on the Great Lakes puts the probable 1948 movement of iron ore from the ore banks to the railroads at a new peace-time record for the Great Lakes fleets. What is more to the point, by the time Winter closes the passages there will be deposited on the docks along the lower lakes almost a third more ore than the blast furnaces will consume before shipping begins again in the Spring, at the September rate of consumption.

This is good news for steel users, for it means that lack of ore at least will not cause any curtailment of furnace and mill operations in the coming months. There may be fuel, scrap iron or labor problems, but the Winter's supply of ore is secure. If the estimates all prove correct, there will be more ore still on hand next Spring when the lakes carriers resume operations than there has been for the past two years.

Fewer blast furnaces were in operation on October 1 than a year ago or two years ago. If there is to be more of the steel which is so widely needed, means may have to be found to get more furnaces working, and to keep them going more steadily.

NO VISA FOR ITALY

AMERICAN tourists who wish to include Italy in their itinerary of pleasure visits no longer have to obtain visas from the Italian government. The Italians are dispensing with that formality, in order to encourage Americans to visit their land. In return, the United States has made special visas available to Italians wishing to visit America.

This is a friendly step which ought to improve further the relations between the two countries. On the other hand it reminds us that travel across many international borders still is complicated by tangles of red tape and restrictions. The official obstacles to a trip across the continent of Europe are constantly amazing to Americans accustomed to the ease with which we move about our own huge country and across the borders into Canada and Mexico.

In addition to being pleasant, easy international travel is important to trade and understanding. It would be good if the Italian example would be followed by other countries.

These Days

Perhaps it is not good form to jump the gun on a preview of a motion picture, but as I cannot contain my emotional response to Walter Wanger's "Joan of Arc," I have to tell you that never in all my days have I been so driven to describe and praise an artistic work which, like all true art, carries with it an eternal message—the message of human liberty.

Motion pictures are intended to entertain, and often it is said that the reason so few pictures attain such heights as "The Song of Bernadette" or "The Keys of the Kingdom" is that the public wants only amusement and not really the unbelievably glorious. The proof that that is not so lies in the box-office returns of fine pictures; the astonishing success of such a film as "Henry V." But nothing that I have seen or listened to equals in beauty, in authenticity, in fine acting or in the emotional response of the audience to "Joan of Arc."

It ought to be shown in every city and village of France, Italy, Spain and Germany that they may know that hope is eternal, that life does not become a boorish enslavement as long as faith and sacrifice and determination to be free are not dead.

For what the story of "Joan of Arc" tells is that the quality of greatness may be found in the humblest soul, as the beautiful violet will grow in the dung of the woods. Joan was an illiterate peasant girl. She knew no affairs of state nor how men rose to high rank. She only believed that God could not wish upon men the miseries of slavery, the tortures of the spirit in alien tutelage, the heartbreak of defeat, the hopelessness of life without liberty. And so she, the little girl from nowhere who believed, moved the world of her day and stirred the imagination of man forever.

Joan of Arc was burned at the stake. Those who killed her now pray in her name. She gave courage to a nation. She taught that only those are slaves who choose to be slaves; the evil, the sin is not in slavery as it is in the choice not to be free. Joan will ever be the patron saint of human liberty.

This is difficult motion picture material. Only one slip into the vulgar and it descends to the level of what is called Hollywood. But there is no slip. The level is high; the tone is right; the choice of words, the sequence of events, the music, the costumes, the fighting, the religious ceremonies authentic to the last detail.

The ideal of human liberty is the essence of Western civilization. Other civilizations have had other ideals, but we are nothing once we abandon the concept that man was created free and to be free. No government, no power, no man can destroy the freedom of the individual man. This, Joan of Arc heard in the voices which inspired her and formed the pattern of her short life.

Most of us do not hear voices, but we do hear eternally the voice of liberty. It is the soul of our being; it is the explanation of our existence. Too often we fail to listen. We take too much for granted. Enjoying liberty, we accept what we have and fail to be vigilant.

Aspirin Definitely Unsafe For Certain People to Take

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ASPIRIN is an effective drug for stopping pain and reducing fever. As such, it is most useful, but it is not something to take—as so many people do today—on a hit-or-miss basis as a panacea for every pain.

As a matter of fact, though most of us can take aspirin safely, it may hold definite dangers for certain people. It should never be used except under the doctor's directions, for instance, by those suffering from severe heart weakness or any kind of kidney trouble. Others who, it is suggested, had better let it alone are diabetics and people who use alcohol to excess.

Allergic Reactions
Some perfectly healthy individuals cannot use aspirin because in them it causes allergic reactions, one or two ordinary tablets being enough to produce swelling of the tissues, hives, redness of the eyes, and depressed heart action. These reactions may occur from 15 minutes to three hours after the drug is taken.

On the other hand, a good many people who are sensitive to aspirin are already suffering from some other allergic disease, such as asthma or hay fever. Others likely to be allergic are patients with polypoid little tumor growths in the nose and, in such cases, aspirin sensitivity first causes symptoms affecting the lining membranes of the nose, throat and lungs; next, those affecting the skin and, finally, those which upset the stomach and bowel. Often enough, the allergic disorder itself is made worse by the taking of aspirin.

People often wonder how much

aspirin would have to be taken before it could produce symptoms of poisoning. Ordinarily it would require a very large dose—something like 8 to 10 grams or from 24 to 30 of the usual aspirin tablets. In sensitive people, however, a much smaller amount has been known to cause severe and even fatal reactions.

Children Under Four

In children under four years of age, particularly in those who are weakened or sickly, doses of ½ of a gram up to 2½ grams cause such disturbances as loss of fluids from the body, vomiting and convulsions. Thus, it can be seen that aspirin, like all other drugs, should be used with their physician to determine whether or not they are allergic to aspirin. If sensitive, they should, of course, not employ the drug thereafter. It sometimes is possible to tell when a person is allergic to the drug by placing a little on the tongue. In cases of allergy, this is followed by coughing, itching and swelling of the tongue.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A Reader: When I work in water my fingers won't straighten up. What could be the cause?
Answer: It is not possible to determine exactly what is causing your difficulty. You should have an examination made by your physician to determine if any abnormal condition is present.

The difficulty may be due to muscle cramps, or possibly to some disturbance of the circulation as a result of immersion of the hands in cold water.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

GAIL FELT properly flattered when she was told not to underestimate her father. Alexandria's appearance of fragility was charming, and an illusion. She could operate like a steam shovel or a steam roller, not always, of course, Gail reflected, there were times when the methods weren't so obvious.

She said, a little stiffly, that naturally only time could tell but Brad had appeared satisfied with the turn of events.

"Bradford," said Alexandria, "is an idealist."

Gail rose. She must get ready for her luncheon engagement, she said. She and Brad would be home for dinner. She told Alexandria where she would be in the interim, as she had, somewhat rebelliously, learned to do, and went upstairs to dress. On the way she encountered Millicent, the nandkerchief waving like a flag of truce and muttering to herself like the White Rabbit. Gail afforded her a swift, sidelong smile which brought a slight flush to Millicent's maiden cheek.

Presently Gail departed to meet Pat and her mother, Pat as radiant as high noon, as effervescent as a bromide but not sedative in effect, her mother placid and admiring. After luncheon, during which Pat never stopped talking, they went to the bridal shop in a big store and Pat tried on her wedding dress. She looked pretty as a pin-up in it but, unlike most pin-ups, almost painfully childish. Gail's throat contracted watching her turn before the mirror, and the elderly fitter, with the middle-aged spread, sat back on her heels, with her mouth full of pins and speaking seriously around them remarked that, as often as she fitted them, she never got tired, there was something special about brides.

Pat's eyes shone, and so did her mother's; in the older woman's the shining was half anticipated grief, half joy remembered and joy prayerfully besought.

Gail's frock was brought out for the fitting. It was simple and in a delicate shade of blue. The hat that went with it was big and demure, with deeper blue flowers. Pat, sitting on a stool in her slip, cried, "You look wonderful! No one will look at me except Bill, and he'll be too scared."

They talked about the wedding, which was to be in Pat's home, and about Evie who couldn't fly on after all. Gail would be the only attendant. And then the rest of the things were brought out. . . not many, all carefully selected. The fitter asked, "Can't this be nipped in, a little? You're so small," and Pat said woefully, "It's disgusting to be insignificant." But she didn't feel insignificant. She knew she was the most important person in the world, except one other. The knowledge illuminated her and Gail recognized it dimly, enviously. She thought, What can it be like, trying on your wedding things, thinking of your wedding day, the day on which you will be married to a man with whom you are crazily in love?

Her head began to ache a little, a dull, persistent pressure, and she was glad when they had finished. Pat must come for final fittings but Gail need not. They said goodbye to the fitter and the saleswoman, and went out. It was a little after five and Pat said regretfully that they couldn't come with her to meet Brad. They were going to kill a pig for an early dinner. "Not that his father will be there," Pat explained, "or it is not for long. That's what I'll be up against; late meals, cold meals, or no meals. Any girl who marries a doctor is a fool." But she didn't look as if she minded being one or as if, at this juncture, nousehold routine mattered.

Gail walked to the St. Regis. She was early and could get a table and wait. But when she came into the King Cole bar, Brad rose from a big table and waved. She had the feeling that he had been waiting for some time, and not alone. Helena Sturm was with him.

She went to the table and sat down, smiling at Helena, and the greeting over, Brad inquired, "What happened to Pat?"

Gail explained, and the waiter arrived with her drink, which Brad had ordered. She lifted her glass, conscious of a heavy weariness, and Helena said anxiously, "I hope I do not intrude. But Brad insisted."

She looked appalling, her face drawn, her eyes shadowed, and when she spoke her accent was more marked, her voice slurred as if with fatigue. And Gail said quickly, "Of course not. . . I'm so glad to see you. . . How is Dr. Sturm?"

"Much better," said Helena, and folded her carefully rouged lips in her secret way, a way which warned, I am sure you mean to be kind but now it is you who intrude, and Gail felt rebuffed and uncomfortable.

They did not stay at the St. Regis long and when they went out a taxi drew up. Gail rarely used the car, by day, because of the parking difficulties. And Brad said, "Get in, girls."

"Please," said Helena. "I can take the bus."

"Don't be difficult." He put her in, and Gail, and gave the driver Helena's address. They dropped her off and went on home, and on the way he asked, "You didn't mind having her? She needed to get out and I thought we wouldn't be alone anyway."

"Why should I mind? I'm sorry I asked about Dr. Sturm. I saw that she didn't like it."

"She's oversensitive and scared," Brad said, "but he is better, for the time being."

"Brad, please tell me what happened today." She felt tense, and coiled. How could he talk about Helena Sturm and her husband, what did they matter, at this moment?

girdles; the government has no intention of restraining the girls in any way.

And if Stalin is not impressed by the reactivation of the WAC he just doesn't realize that we mean business.

Anyway it's nice to see the Berlin situation coming up to an end while we still have the upper hand. . . 3,000 feet up.

For awhile there it appeared that a crisis was approaching.

ment, surely her affairs were more important, Gail thought.

"Well," said Brad, "there was considerable premarital sparring. Renton sat in, a good man in any situation. But I'd hate to play poker with your father, darling. However, he knows when a bluff's been called. When he was finally convinced that it was a take-or-leave-it offer and that we didn't care if he left it, he gave in. Renton's secretary went with him to buy some clothes and luggage and we'd managed space on the train."

"Why Chicago?" Gail asked.

"I don't know. He said it was a good base from which to operate. His last gesture was to ask for a compartment. He said he hadn't been comfortable on the trip east and he'd like to depart in comparative luxury."

"For heaven's sake!" Gail said helplessly.

Brad laughed, took her hand and held it. He said, "There was a cancellation, so Renton's secretary got the space and saw him off. He phoned from the station, after the train left."

"I wonder what he plans," Gail said slowly.

"He didn't say. Nor did I ask." She thought, How much did he give him? She must ask, of course, but the question was like a fishhook in her throat. She felt ashamed and nervous. But Alexandria would ask, at once.

They had reached the house and as they went up the steps she said quickly, "Before you see your grandmother. . . let's talk a little, Brad."

He looked at her. "Okay," he said cheerfully, as Andrews opened the door. They could hear Alexandria lecturing Millicent in the drawing room and Brad told Andrews, "Tell Mrs. Spencer that we'll join her very soon."

They went upstairs to their suite and changed for dinner. Dressing, in a most luxurious jungle, Gail thought; nations starved, children died and men plotted, were flamed and smoldered, the world swung upside down, but Alexandria wore a long frock, Millicent hung more beads about her sagging throat, and Brad put on a dinner coat.

Gail took off her suit and went to wash. She could hear the shower running in Brad's bathroom. After a while he came into her dressing room, where she stood before a long mirror adjusting the belt of a dinner frock made as simply as a sports dress.

"You look lovely, Mrs. Spencer, as usual."

"Thank you," she said. "Brad, how much did you give him?"

The fishhook tore, it brought blood. And Brad put his arms about her.

"Must you look tragic?" he said.

"A hundred a week, if he sticks to the terms of the agreement."

"But that's so much," she said slowly, and moved away from him, gently.

"He didn't think so, but Renton believed it a reasonable amount."

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—We were speaking in passing, the other day, of the Nine Cold Men, as the drama critics for the newspapers of this decadent community are known, and today we must deal with them again because they have us shaken and confused at the moment.

This motley crew makes up a large and definite part of the New York scene in the winter. A producer will spend $250,000 in piecing together a musical comedy, rehearse it for six weeks, sell his soul or knife his mother in the back to obtain a couple of Hollywood stars for the leading roles—and then throw the whole thing on opening night into the lap of this curious band of trained seals.

If the critics like it, the show is in. If they don't, the quarter of a million dollars has gone down the drain. It is a peculiar system of doing business and only explanation for it all is the time-honored "Well—that's show business."

Some playwrights, like Irwin Shaw and Maxwell Anderson, have publicly become bitter and violent about the whole thing; in addition to criticizing the whole system, they have suggested that perhaps certain of the critics are not suited particularly for their profession and would be better off laying bricks.

The other evening George Abbott brought to town a show called "Where's Charley?", a musical based on the play, also time-honored, "Charley's Aunt." It starred Ray Bolger, and when the Nine Cold Men filed out of the St. James theater on opening night they were all agreed that Bolger had done a magnificent job. However, there their agreements terminated.

When we read their respective reviews, it was obvious that they had not gotten together in the lobby during intermission and matched notes. Wrote Bill Hawkins of one of the afternoon dailies: "The sort of show you fall in love with and go back to see over and over again." Wrote Richard Watts, Jr., of another p. m. paper: "Strangely dreary." Of Mr. Abbott's direction, wrote Mr. Hawkins: "Has done a masterful job." Of Mr. Abbott's direction, wrote Howard Barnes of a morning paper: "Lumbering." And so on and on.

THIS WAS THE SECOND TIME in recent weeks that there had been so much sound and fury in opposite directions. Tennessee Williams' new play, Summer and Smoke, was hit with everything but the well-known kitchen sink by some of the Nine Cold Men; others thought it was the greatest thing since Juno and the Paycock.

If you read one paper, you prepared joyfully to stand in line at the box-office in a desperate hunt for seats three months from now. If you read another, you promptly dismissed the whole thing from mind and settled for Hubert's Flea Museum on 42nd street.

We are, as we have said, shaken and confused. You ask what did WE think of Where's Charley? Well, there were parts of it that we'd love to see over and over again, and yet there seem to be other parts that are strangely dreary. In spots, George Abbott has directed it masterfully; in other spots, we wouldn't be true to our readers if we didn't say it lumbered a little.

Mention of Mr. Bolger reminds us of the time we lunched with him a couple of years ago in the men's bar of the Waldorf and he told of the beginnings of his stage career.

A thin, astigmatic Bostonian—why do all Bostonians look as if they washed five times a day, cleaned their fingernails until the quick ached and otherwise sandpapered themselves?—he was a bank clerk until he and a big comic named Ralph Sanford got up an act called Sanford and Bolger—A Pair of Nifties.

They got started up in Poughkeepsie, in lower New York state, and after the first show, the theater manager, a Mr. Cohen, peered sadly into the dressing room at them. "A pair of nifties," he commented glumly. "Phooey!"

SOME SEASONS AGO, A FAMOUS DANCER (not Ray Bolger) was discussing the art of his colleagues with us over a beer in Louie Bergen's Theater tavern, and he pronounced this judgment on Paul Draper: "Probably the greatest dancer in the world, technically—but so unemotional and cold in his work that you don't care whether you see him or not."

This critique came back to us when, after leaving Mr. Bolger's exquisite demonstration at the St. James, we hurried up to the Persian Room of the Plaza to catch Mr. Draper's latest performance. Something evidently has happened to Draper in the years between; he remains as brilliant of technique as ever, but his dancing now has taken on a fire and warmth that it never had before.

The night we saw him, a gentleman who shouldn't have had that last glass of Napoleon brandy was intent at first on sharing the platform with Paul, but gradually Draper's sheer magic of foot slowed him down to silent admiration.

What happens to a performer to bring about such a change? Has he, in the words of Faith Baldwin, LIVED? Mr. Draper is now a great dancer in every sense of the word—and what made him that way would undoubtedly be the foundation of a good novel. If Paul doesn't mind, the next time we go to see him we're going to bring along our psychiatrist, to get at the root of the matter.

BIGGER ORE STOCK

AN ESTIMATE based on shipments which have been completed together with normal expectations for the remaining weeks of the shipping season on the Great Lakes puts the probable 1948 movement of iron ore from the ore banks to the railheads at a new peace-time record for the Great Lakes fleets. What is more to the point, by the time Winter closes the passages there will be deposited on the docks along the lower lakes almost a third more than the blast furnaces will consume before shipping begins again in the Spring, at the September rate of consumption.

This is good news for steel users, for it means that lack of ore at least will not cause any curtailment of furnace and mill operations in the coming months. There may be fuel, scrap iron or labor problems, but the Winter's supply of ore is secure. If the estimates all prove correct, there will be more ore still on hand next Spring when the lakes carriers resume operations than there has been for the past two years.

Fewer blast furnaces were in operation on October 1 than a year ago or two years ago. If there is to be more of the steel which is so widely needed, means may have to be found to get more furnaces working, and to keep them going more steadily.

NO VISA FOR ITALY

AMERICAN tourists who wish to include Italy in their itinerary of pleasure visits no longer have to obtain visas from the Italian government. The Italians are dispensing with that formality, in order to encourage Americans to visit their land. In return, the United States has made special visas available to Italians wishing to visit America.

This is a friendly step which ought to improve further the relations between the two countries. On the other hand it reminds us that travel across many international borders still is complicated by tangles of red tape and restrictions. The official obstacles to a trip across the continent of Europe are constantly amazing to Americans accustomed to the ease with which we move about our own huge country and across the borders into Canada and Mexico.

In addition to being pleasant, easy international travel is important to trade and understanding. It would be good if the Italian example would be followed by other countries.

These Days

Perhaps it is not good form to jump the gun on a preview of a motion picture, but as I cannot contain my emotional response to Walter Wanger's "Joan of Arc," I have to tell you that never in all my days have I been so driven to describe and praise an artistic work which, like all true art, carries with it an eternal message—the message of human liberty.

Motion pictures are intended to entertain, and often it is said that the reason so few pictures attain such heights as "The Song of Bernadette" or "The Keys of the Kingdom" is that the public wants only amusement and not really the unbelievably glorious. The proof that that is not so lies in the box-office returns of fine pictures; the astonishing success of such a film as "Henry V." But nothing that I have seen or listened to equals in beauty, in authenticity, in fine acting or in the emotional response of the audience to "Joan of Arc."

It ought to be shown in every city and village of France, Italy, Spain and Germany that they may know that hope is eternal, that life does not become a boorish enslavement as long as faith and sacrifice and determination to be free are not dead.

For what the story of "Joan of Arc" tells is that the quality of greatness may be found in the humblest soul, as the beautiful violet will grow in the dung of the woods. Joan was an illiterate peasant girl. She knew no affairs of state nor how men rose to high rank. She only believed that God could not wish upon men the miseries of slavery, the tortures of the spirit in alien tutelage, the heartbreak of defeat, the hopelessness of life without liberty. And so she, the little girl from nowhere who believed, moved the world of her day and stirred the imagination of man forever.

Joan of Arc was burned at the stake. Those who killed her now pray in her name. She gave courage to a nation. She taught that only those are slaves who choose to be slaves; the evil, the sin is not in slavery as it is in the choice not to be free. Joan will ever be the patron saint of human liberty.

This is difficult motion picture material. Only one slip into the vulgar and it descends to the level of what is called Hollywood. But there is no slip. The level is high; the tone is right; the choice of words, the sequence of events, the music, the costumes, the fighting, the religious ceremonies authentic to the last detail.

The ideal of human liberty is the essence of Western civilization. Other civilizations have had other ideals, but we are nothing once we abandon the concept that man was created free and to be free. No government, no power, no man can destroy the freedom of the individual man. This, Joan of Arc heard in the voices which inspired her and formed the pattern of her short life.

Most of us do not hear voices, but we do hear eternally the voice of liberty. It is the soul of our being; it is the explanation of our existence. Too often we fail to listen. We take too much for granted. Enjoying liberty, we accept what we have and fail to be vigilant.

Aspirin Definitely Unsafe For Certain People to Take

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ASPIRIN is an effective drug for stopping pain and reducing fever. As such, it is most useful, but it is not something to take—as so many people do today—on a hit-or-miss basis as a panacea for every pain.

As a matter of fact, though most of us can take aspirin safely, it may hold definite dangers for certain people. It should never be used except under the doctor's directions, for instance, by those suffering from severe heart weakness or any kind of kidney trouble. Others who, it is suggested, had better let it alone are diabetics and people who use alcohol to excess.

Allergic Reactions

Some perfectly healthy individuals cannot use aspirin because in them it causes allergic reactions, one or two ordinary tablets being enough to produce swelling of the tissues, hives, redness of the eyes, and depressed heart action. These reactions may occur from 15 minutes to three hours after the drug is taken.

On the other hand, a good many people who are sensitive to aspirin are already suffering from some other allergic disease, such as asthma or hay fever. Others likely to be allergic are patients with polypoid or little tumor growths in the nose and, in such cases, aspirin sensitivity first causes symptoms affecting the lining membranes of the nose, throat and lungs; next, those affecting the skin and, finally, those which upset the stomach and bowel. Often enough, the allergic disorder itself is made worse by the taking of aspirin.

aspirin would have to be taken before it could produce symptoms of poisoning. Ordinarily it would require a very large dose—something like 8 to 10 grams or from 24 to 30 of the usual aspirin tablets. In sensitive people, however, a much smaller amount has been known to cause severe and even fatal reactions.

Children Under Four

In children under four years of age, particularly in those who are weakened or sickly, doses of ½ of a gram up to 2½ grams cause such disturbances as loss of fluids from the body, vomiting and convulsions.

Thus, it can be seen that aspirin, like all other drugs, should be used with care. Patients who are disturbed by taking it should consult with their physician to determine whether or not they are allergic to aspirin. If sensitive, they should, of course, not employ the drug thereafter. It is sometimes possible to tell when a person is allergic to the drug by placing a little on the tongue. In cases of allergy, this is followed by coughing, itching and swelling of the tongue.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Reader: When I work in water my fingers won't straighten up. What could be the cause?

Answer: It is not possible to determine exactly what is causing your difficulty. You should have an examination made by your physician to determine if any abnormal condition is present.

The difficulty may be due to muscle cramps, or possibly to some disturbance of the circulation as a result of immersion of the hands in cold water.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

GAIL FELT properly flattered when she was told not to underestimate her father. Alexandria's appearance of fragility was charming, and an illusion. She could operate like a steam shovel or a steam roller; not always, of course, Gail reflected, there were times when the methods weren't so obvious.

She said, a little stiffly, that naturally only time could tell but Brad had appeared satisfied with the turn of events.

"Bradford," said Alexandria, "is an idealist."

Gail rose. She must get ready for her luncheon engagement, she said. She and Brad would be home for dinner. She told Alexandria where she would be in the interim, as she had, somewhat rebelliously, learned to do, and went upstairs to dress. On the way she encountered Millicent, the nanny, waving like a flag of truce and muttering to herself like the White Rabbit. Gail afforded her a swift, sidelong smile which brought a slight flush to Millicent's maiden cheek.

Presently Gail departed to meet Pat and her mother, Pat as radiant as high noon, as effervescent as a bromide but not sedative in effect, her mother placid and admiring. After luncheon, during which Brad never stopped talking, they went to the bridal shop in a big store and Pat tried on her wedding dress. She looked pretty as a pin-dress, like 8 to 10 grams or from 24 to 30 of the usual aspirin tablets. In sensitive people, however, a much smaller amount has been known to cause severe and even fatal reactions.

Pat's eyes shone, and so did her mother's; in the older woman's the shining was half anticipated joy and half joy remembered and joy prayerfully besought.

Gail's frock was brought out for the fitting. It was simple and in a delicate shade of blue. The hat that went with it was big and demure, with deeper blue flowers. Pat, sitting on a stool in her slip, cried, "You look wonderful! No one will look at me except Bill, and he'll be too scared."

They talked about the wedding, which was to be in Pat's home, and about Evie who couldn't fly on after all. Gail would be the only attendant. And then the rest of the things were brought out . . . not many, all carefully selected. The fitter asked, "Can't this be nipped in, a little? You're so small," and Pat said wearily, "It's disgusting to be insignificant." But she didn't feel insignificant. She knew she was the most important person in the world, except one other. The knowledge illuminated her and Gail recognized it dimly, enviously. She thought, What can it be like, trying on your wedding things, thinking of your wedding day, the day on which you will be married to a man with whom you are crazy in love?

Her head began to ache a little, a dull, persistent pressure, and she was glad when they had finished. Pat must come for final fittings but Gail needed not. They said goodbye to the fitter and the saleswoman, and went out. It was a little after five and Pat said regretfully that they couldn't come with her to meet Brad. They were going to Bill's people for an early dinner. "Not that his father will be there," Pat explained, "or it is, not for long. That's what I'll be up against, late meals, cold meals, or no meals. Any girl who marries a doctor is a fool." But she didn't look as if she minded being one or as if, at this juncture, nousehold routine mattered.

Gail walked to the St. Regis. She was early and could get a table and wait. But when she came into the King Cole bar, Brad rose from a big table and waved. She had the feeling that he had been waiting for some time, and not alone. Helena Sturm was with him.

She went to the table and sat down, smiling at Helena, and the greeting over, Brad inquired, "What happened to Pat?"

Gail explained, and the waiter arrived with her drink, which Brad had ordered. She lifted her glass, conscious of a heavy weariness, and Helena said anxiously, "I hope I do not intrude. But Brad insisted."

She looked appalling, her face drawn, her eyes shadowed, and when she spoke her accent was more marked, her voice slurred as if with fatigue. And Gail said quickly, "Of course not . . . I'm so glad to see you . . . How is Dr. Sturm?"

"Much better," said Helena, and folded her carefully rouged lips in her secret way, a way which warned, I am sure you mean to be kind but now it is you who intrude, and Gail felt rebuffed and uncomfortable.

They did not stay at the St. Regis long and when they went out a taxi drew up. Gail rarely used the car, by day, because of the parking difficulties. And Brad said, "Get in, girls."

"Please," said Helena. "I can take the bus."

"Don't be difficult." He put her in, and Gail, and gave the driver Helena's address. They dropped her off and went on home, and on the way he asked, "You didn't mind having her? She needed to get out and I thought we wouldn't be alone anyway."

"Why should I mind? I'm sorry I asked about Dr. Sturm. I saw that she didn't like it."

"She's oversensitive and scared," Brad said, "but he is better, for the time being."

"Brad, please tell me what happened today." She felt tense, and cold. How could he talk about Helena Sturm and her husband, what did they matter, at this moment?

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer If the critics like it, the show is in. If they don't, the quarter of a million dollars has gone down the drain. It is a peculiar system of doing business and the only explanation for it all is the time-honored "Well—that's show business."

Some playwrights, like Irwin Shaw and Maxwell Anderson, have publicly become bitter and violent about the whole thing; in addition to criticizing the whole system, they have suggested that perhaps certain of the critics are not suited particularly for their profession and would be better off laying bricks.

The other evening George Abbott brought to town a show called "Where's Charley?", a musical based on the play, also time-honored, "Charley's Aunt." It starred Ray Bolger, and when the Nine Cold Men fled out of the St. James theater on opening night they were all agreed that Bolger had done a magnificent job. However, there their agreements terminated.

When we read their respective reviews, it was obvious that they had not gotten together in the lobby during intermission and matched notes. Wrote Bill Hawkins of one of the afternoon dailies: "The sort of show you fall in love with and go back to see over and over again." Wrote Richard Watts, Jr., of another p. m. paper: "Strangely dreary." Of Mr. Abbott's direction, wrote Mr. Hawkins: "Has done a masterful job." Of Mr. Abbott's direction, wrote Howard Barnes of a morning paper: "Lumbering." And so on and on.

THIS WAS THE SECOND TIME in recent weeks that there had been so much sound and fury in opposite directions. Tennessee Williams' new play, Summer and Smoke, was hit with everything but the well-known kitchen sink by some of the Nine Cold Men; others thought it was the greatest thing since Juno and the Paycock.

If you read one paper, you prepared joyfully to stand in line at the box-office in a desperate hunt for seats three months from now. If you read another, you promptly dismissed the whole thing from mind and settled for Hubert's Flea Museum on 42nd street.

We are, as we have said, shaken and confused. You ask what did WE think of Where's Charley? Well, there were parts of it that we'd love to see over and over again, and yet there seem to be other parts that are strangely dreary. In spots, George Abbott has directed it masterfully; in other spots, we wouldn't be true to our readers if we didn't say it lumbered a little.

Mention of Mr. Bolger reminds us of the time we lunched with him a couple of years ago in the men's bar of the Waldorf and he told of the beginnings of his stage career.

A thin, astringent Bostonian—why do all Bostonians look as if they washed five times a day, cleaned their fingernails until the quick ached and otherwise sandpapered themselves?—he was a bank clerk until he and a big comic named Ralph Sanford got up an act called Sanford and Bolger—A Pair of Nifties.

They got started up in Poughkeepsie, in lower New York state, and after the first show, the theater manager, a Mr. Cohen, peered sadly into the dressing room at them. "A pair of nifties," he commented glumly. "Phooey!"

SOME SEASONS AGO, A FAMOUS DANCER (not Ray Bolger) was discussing the art of his colleagues with us over a beer in Louie Bergen's Theater tavern, and he pronounced this judgment on Paul Draper: "Probably the greatest dancer in the world, technically—but so unemotional and cold in his work that you don't care whether you see him or not."

This critique came back to us when, after leaving Mr. Bolger's exquisite demonstration at the St. James, we hurried up to the Persian Room of the Plaza to catch Mr. Draper's latest performance. Something evidently has happened to Draper in the years between; he remains as brilliant of technique as ever, but his dancing now has taken on a fire and warmth that it never had before.

The night we saw him, a gentleman who shouldn't have had that last glass of Napoleon brandy was intent at first on sharing the platform with Paul, but gradually Draper's sheer magic of foot slowed him down to silent admiration.

What happens to a performer to bring about such a change? Has he, in the words of Faith Baldwin, LIVED? Mr. Draper is now a great dancer in every sense of the word—and what made him that way would undoubtedly be the foundation of a good novel. If Paul doesn't mind, the next time we go to see him we're going to bring along our psychiatrist, to get at the root of the matter.

County Girls Among 98 Taking Test

Ohio Chief Justice Preparing Final

Two Pickaway County high school senior girls will compete in the Ohio History, Government and Citizenship final examinations at Ohio university, Athens Friday.

They are Jo Ann May of Walnut Township high school, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard May of Amanda Route 1, and Kathryn June Morris of Pickaway Township high school, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Morris of Kingston Route 1.

The final examination has been prepared by Carl T. Weygandt, Ohio supreme court chief justice. It is essay type and will be given at 3 p. m.

First prize in final competition will be a $100 cash prize, while second place will receive $50, third will be awarded $25 and the next six placers will be given $10.

Misses Morris and May will spend a two-day, expense paid stay on the university campus and will see the Ohio Bobcat football team in action against Duquesne Saturday.

All 98 winners in the local competitions will receive certificates of merit, and in addition, each school producing a winner will receive a certificate suitable for framing in honor of both the student and his school. They also receive a two-day all-expense-paid trip to the university.

Women Don't Drink-In Ads

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—According to state liquor board policy, and the resulting advertisements, Ohio women don't drink—and it looks like the situation will stay that way.

At a board meeting with liquor industry representatives and other interested parties yesterday in Columbus, Chairman Walter Mitchell said opinion "indicated that advertisements offensive to home life are not to be sponsored in Ohio."

Liquor industry spokesmen said they'd continue to go along with the program.

Flaming Truck Traps Driver

ZANESVILLE, Oct. 26—John E. Christopher, 27, Caldwell, was burned to death late yesterday in a wrecked truck while three men struggled in vain to release him. Christopher's gravel truck had crashed into the rear of an oil well supply truck from Newark, driven by Donald Vanway, 32, of Granville. The accident occurred on Route 147, seven miles south-east of Zanesville.

The victim's foot was caught in the wreckage. Vanway was not hurt.

America's Navy To Celebrate It's Day; Tell World Of Prowess

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Tomorrow is Navy Day, and America's seagoing armed forces are doing their best to see that no one forgets it.

Soldiers, airmen and just plain civilians can swarm aboard Navy ships at 67 ports in the United States, the Hawaiian Islands and England to see how the braid and the just plain sailors live.

Inland bases operated by the Navy will be open to inspection, except in cases where work is so highly secret that not even admirals can get in without credentials.

In addition, the Navy wants people in towns in which the big ship is a celluloid toy in Junior's bathtub to know about Navy Day. With this in mind Navy airplanes—regular and regular reserve—will provide air shows over almost all major cities.

All the braid in the Navy, and top ranking civilian officials of all the armed services are speaking throughout the country. In all, more than 130 flag officers and civilians will tell the world of the Navy and its works. In 1,500 communities fraternal and

International Livestock Exposition Plans Made

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—Work has begun on the 49th edition of the International Live Stock Exposition, the nation's leading agricultural event, and early reports indicate that the 1948 show should attract larger classes than in any previous International in the nearly 50 years of its history.

The exposition, which transforms Chicago into a great focal point of the continent's live stock industry, drawing nearly half a million people from the 48 states, all Canadian provinces and foreign countries, is scheduled for Nov. 27 through Dec. 4 in the huge International Amphitheatre of the Chicago Stock Yards.

Livestock shows throughout the continent were generally larger this year, W. E. Ogilvie, manager of the show, announces, and this is a good barometer of what may be anticipated at the Chicago exposition. The management predicts entries this year will exceed the 12,500 head of animals exhibited last year.

The International is considered by stockmen and farmers as the high court among all such events, where final decisions in matters of livestock are made. An International winning is regarded as the highest award that exhibitors can attain.

PREMIUMS for the show have been increased this year, as breed associations have volunteered more money for International classes, and the prize total of the show will exceed the usual $100,000 for the competitions of four breeds of beef cattle, 11 breeds of sheep, nine of swine and five of draft horses.

The Junior Livestock Feeding Contest for boy and girl feeders

of fat cattle, swine, and sheep will again assume its prominent place on the first day's program.

The 26th International Grain and Hay Show will bring crop samples from six Canadian provinces and most of the 48 states to a world-renowned competition where the "royalty" among crop producers are crowned.

The famous International Horse Show, another leading event of its kind, will again provide top entertainment. New features are planned for this year's series of Horse Shows which are scheduled daily through the eight-day run of the Exposition.

Entries for the show close Nov. 1 for all live stock classes except carloads of fat stock which may be made up to Nov. 20. Grain Show entries close Nov. 10.

Airmen Improve Refueling System On Big Bombers

DAYTON, Oct. 26 — The Wright-Patterson Air Force Base announced today the development of a continuous flow fuel system which will greatly improve speed and efficiency in aircraft servicing.

Created and developed by Capt. David Samiran, veteran soldier-scientist in the air materiel command laboratory, the new system features an automatic continuous flow of fuel from all tanks to all engines.

A second feature of the system is that it permits refueling of all tanks safely, quickly and efficiently from a single point on the plane.

Under the new continuous flow set-up it is no longer necessary for the pilot to switch tanks manually since all tanks are connected with all engines which are automatically supplied until all tanks are empty.

Prior to the development of the new single point system, it took 13 men with four trucks 45 minutes to refuel a B-29. Now, one man and one truck can accomplish the same thing in 30 minutes without danger of fire or gasoline spillage.

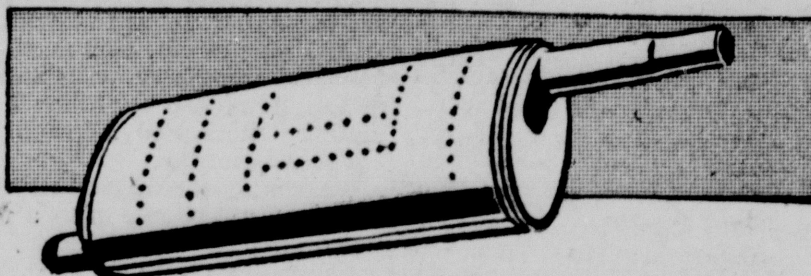

UNDER THE new system, fuel may be transferred from one plane to another, and air-to-air refueling is possible.

The single point system is currently being placed in the B-36, B-45, B-40 and XB-52 planes and will be incorporated in most of the new medium bomber designs planned by the Air Force.

Dear Voter:

As a citizen and voter in Pickaway County, you no doubt are interested in some of the work that is handled by the Probate and Juvenile Court of your county.

The following is some of the legal work acted upon by the Court during the calendar year of 1947.

Estates and Guardianships opened	150
Estates and Guardianships closed	214
Marriage licenses issued	183
Birth Registrations	16
Birth Corrections	6
Adoptions	9
Number of persons committed to State Institutions for the mentally ill and feeble-minded	21
Number of children involved in official and unofficial cases of dependent neglected and crippled children	94
Number of children involved in official and unofficial cases of juvenile delinquency	541
Number of children checked and placed by the Executive Secretary of the Child Welfare Board	32
Number of adults involved in official and unofficial cases of contributing to the delinquency, dependency and neglect of minor children	73
Number of families checked and placed on the A. D. C. program	95
Number of children checked belonging to the above 95 families for A. D. C.	222

In addition to the above, there are various other important records kept, and judicial work being constantly performed by the Court. The Court is in continuous session to hear cases. It is often necessary for the Court to write lengthy judicial opinions.

During my first and only term of Probate and Juvenile Judge, I have never been reversed by a higher Court. It has been the policy of the Court at all times to serve the public to the best of my ability, to render legal decisions according to the law applicable to the same, to do so fairly and impartially without prejudice, fear or favor to any political party or individual.

I have been a resident of Circleville for the past 37 years, having moved here when I was 6 years old. Before assuming my present duties as Probate and Juvenile Judge, I practiced law in this city for 15 years. I am married and have two children.

In view of my first term record in office, I am asking your support for a SECOND TERM at the coming November election. My name will appear on the Judicial Non-Partisan Ballot. Your vote and influence will indeed be greatly appreciated.

Due to the heavy volume of work in the office, it has been impossible to contact every voter in the county, but the consideration and support of all is heartily solicited.

Exercise your great American birthright and franchise—and VOTE. The entire cost of this letter including stationery, envelope, printing and postage paid by the candidate.

Sincerely yours,

STERLING M. LAMB

County Girls Among 98 Taking Test

Ohio Chief Justice Preparing Final

Two Pickaway County high school senior girls will compete in the Ohio History, Government and Citizenship final examinations at Ohio University, Athens Friday.

They are Jo Ann May of Walnut Township high school, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard May of Amanda Route 1, and Kathryn June Morris of Pickaway Township high school, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Morris of Kingston Route 1.

The final examination has been prepared by Carl T. Weygandt, Ohio supreme court chief justice. It is essay type and will be given at 3 p. m.

First prize in final competition will be a $100 cash prize, while second place will receive $50, third will be awarded $25 and the next six placers will be given $10.

Misses Morris and May will spend a two-day, expense paid stay on the university campus and will see the Ohio Bobcat football team in action against Duquesne Saturday.

All 98 winners in the local competitions will receive certificates of merit, and in addition, each school producing a winner will receive a certificate suitable for framing in honor of both the student and his school. They also receive a two-day all-expense-paid trip to the university.

Women Don't Drink-In Ads

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—According to state liquor board policy, and the resulting advertisements, Ohio women don't drink—and it looks like the situation will stay that way.

At a board meeting with liquor industry representatives and other interested parties yesterday in Columbus, Chairman Walter Mitchell said opinion "indicated that advertisements offensive to home life are not to be sponsored in Ohio."

Liquor industry spokesmen said they continue to go along with the program.

Flaming Truck Traps Driver

ZANESVILLE, Oct. 26—John E. Christopher, 27, Caldwell, was burned to death yesterday in a wrecked truck while three men struggled in vain to release him.

Christopher's gravel truck had crashed into the rear of an oil well supply truck from Newark, driven by Donald Vanway, 32, of Granville. The accident occurred on Route 147, seven miles southeast of Zanesville.

The victim's foot was caught in the wreckage. Vanway was not hurt.

America's Navy To Celebrate It's Day: Tell World Of Prowess

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Tomorrow is Navy Day, and America's seagoing armed forces are doing their best to see that no one forgets it.

Soldiers, airmen and just plain civilians can swarm aboard Navy ships at 67 ports in the United States, the Hawaiian Islands and England to see how the braid and the just plain sailors live.

Inland bases operated by the Navy will be open to inspection, except in cases where work is so highly secret that not even admirals can get in without credentials.

In addition, the Navy wants people in towns in which the biggest ship is a celluloid toy in Junior's bathtub to know about Navy Day. With this in mind Navy airplanes—regular and regular reserve—will provide air shows over almost all major cities.

All the braid in the Navy, and top ranking civilian officials of all the armed services are speaking throughout the country. In all, more than 130 flag officers and civilians will tell the world of the Navy and its works. In 1,500 communities fraternal and civic organizations will sponsor their own celebrations.

In short, no one who has a radio or look at the sky or can see navigable water will be able to avoid Navy Day.

The Navy opened observations last Sunday when flowers were dropped from ships and planes on the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and off the Normandy beaches in memory of sailors and Marines killed in action.

In a less solemn mood, the Navy unveiled its new wave uniforms in a fashion show at the Pentagon with real, live professional models. The models on display tomorrow will be garbed in the familiar blues and whites and will be preponderantly male. But they will be cleaned and pressed and shining, and so will the ships and installations.

OPENING BOOKED NOV. 27

International Livestock Exposition Plans Made

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—Work has begun on the 49th edition of the International Live Stock Exposition, the nation's leading agricultural event, and early reports indicate that the 1948 show should attract larger classes than in any previous International in the nearly 50 years of its history.

The exposition, which transforms Chicago into a great focal point of the continent's live stock industry, drawing nearly half a million people from the 48 states, all Canadian provinces and foreign countries, is scheduled for Nov. 27 through Dec. 4 in the huge International Amphitheatre of the Chicago Stock Yards.

Livestock shows throughout the continent were generally larger this year, W. E. Ogilvie, manager of the show, announces, and this is a good barometer of what may be anticipated at the Chicago exposition. The management predicts entries this year will exceed the 12,500 head of animals exhibited last year.

The International is considered by stockmen and farmers as the high court among all such events, where final decisions in matters of livestock are made. An International winning is regarded as the highest award that exhibitors can attain.

PREMIUMS for the show have been increased this year, as breed associations have volunteered more money for International classes, and the prize total of the show will exceed the usual $100,000 for the competitions of four breeds of beef cattle, 11 breeds of sheep, nine of swine and five of draft horses.

The Junior Livestock Feeding Contest for boy and girl feeders

of fat cattle, swine, and sheep will again assume its prominent place on the first day's program.

The 26th International Grain and Hay Show will bring crop samples from six Canadian provinces and most of the 48 states to a world-renowned competition where the "royalty" among crop producers are crowned.

The famous International Horse Show, another leading event of its kind, will again provide top entertainment. New features are planned for this year's series of Horse Shows which are scheduled daily through the eight-day run of the Exposition.

Entries for the show close Nov. 1 for all live stock classes except carloads of fat stock which may be made up to Nov. 20. Grain Show entries close Nov. 10.

Airmen Improve Refueling System On Big Bombers

DAYTON, Oct. 26—The Wright-Patterson Air Force Base announced today the development of a continuous flow fuel system which will greatly improve speed and efficiency in aircraft servicing.

Created and developed by Capt. David Samiran, veteran soldier-scientist in the air materiel command laboratory, the new system features an automatic continuous flow of fuel from all tanks to all engines.

A second feature of the system is that it permits refueling of all tanks safely, quickly and efficiently from a single point on the plane.

Under the new continuous flow set-up it is no longer necessary for the pilot to switch tanks manually since all tanks are connected with all engines which are automatically supplied until all tanks are empty. Prior to the development of the new single point system, it took 13 men with four trucks 45 minutes to refuel a B-29. Now, one man and one truck can accomplish the same thing in 30 minutes without danger of fire or gasoline spillage.

UNDER THE new system, fuel may be transferred from one plane to another, and air-to-air refueling is possible.

The single point system is currently being placed in the B-36, B-45, B-40 and XB-52 planes and will be incorporated in most of the new medium bomber designs planned by the Air Force.

Dear Voter:

As a citizen and voter in Pickaway County, you no doubt are interested in some of the work that is handled by the Probate and Juvenile Court of your county.

The following is some of the legal work acted upon by the Court during the calendar year of 1947.

Estates and Guardianships opened .....	150
Estates and Guardianships closed .....	214
Marriage licenses issued .....	183
Birth Registrations .....	16
Birth Corrections .....	6
Adoptions .....	9
Number of persons committed to State Institutions for the mentally ill and feeble-minded .....	21
Number of children involved in official and unofficial cases of dependent neglected and crippled children .....	94
Number of children involved in official and unofficial cases of juvenile delinquency .....	541
Number of children checked and placed by the Executive Secretary of the Child Welfare Board .....	32
Number of adults involved in official and unofficial cases of contributing to the delinquency, dependency and neglect of minor children .....	73
Number of families checked and placed on the A. D. C. program .....	95
Number of children checked belonging to the above 95 families for A. D. C. ....	222

In addition to the above, there are various other important records kept, and judicial work being constantly performed by the Court. The Court is in continuous session to hear cases. It is often necessary for the Court to write lengthy judicial opinions.

During my first and only term of Probate and Juvenile Judge, I have never been reversed by a higher Court. It has been the policy of the Court at all times to serve the public to the best of my ability, to render legal decisions according to the law applicable to the same, to do so fairly and impartially without prejudice, fear or favor to any political party or individual.

I have been a resident of Circleville for the past 37 years, having moved here when I was 6 years old. Before assuming my present duties as Probate and Juvenile Judge, I practiced law in this city for 15 years. I am married and have two children.

In view of my first term record in office, I am asking your support for a SECOND TERM at the coming November election. My name will appear on the Judicial Non-Partisan Ballot. Your vote and influence will indeed be greatly appreciated.

Due to the heavy volume of work in the office, it has been impossible to contact every voter in the county, but the consideration and support of all is heartily solicited.

Exercise your great American birthright and franchise—and VOTE. The entire cost of this letter including stationery, envelope, printing and postage paid by the candidate.

Sincerely yours,

STERLING M. LAMB

Reds Seek Ruhr Hold, Solon Says

Eventual Backdown Is Predicted

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26 — A Senate foreign relations committee member declared today that Russia's Berlin moves are aimed at "forcing her way into operation of the Ruhr."

Sen. Smith, (R) N. J., said that United States must not appease the Kremlin in any way which would allow the iron curtain to envelop the vast Ruhr industrial area.

At the same time, he predicted that Russia eventually will "back down" on her demands on the basis of some "face-saving formula suggested by the United Nations."

Smith said he believes that United States ought to agree to "conversations on the whole German question" if Russia lifts the blockade—but that the discussions should not be permitted to lead to any Russian inroads in Western Germany.

Smith, strong advocate of international cooperation, said he does not believe the present situation justifies U. S. participation in a military alliance with Western Europe—but that the picture will be clearer by next January. He said:

"I DON'T believe that the Berlin situation will break out into a shooting war."

"It is not clear that we have got to the place where we have to make military alliances in Western Europe."

"The Ruhr industries must be a part of the Marshall Plan."

The New Jersey Republican declared that agreements between Western European nations under the Marshall Plan—"possibly going so far as a United States of Europe—is the best answer to Communism."

Catholics Hear Faith Ceremony

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—More than 18,000 Catholics of the Columbus diocese were told Sunday that peace and "good times" can come only with increased spirituality, justice and morality.

Addressing the third annual hour of faith ceremony, Lt. Col. William Clabby, chaplain of the air material command, Wright-Patterson Air Base said:

"There can be no good times without goodness of heart. There can be no peace without peace of conscience, and there can be no genuine culture without culture of the soul."

Officials Deny Clinic Report

TOLEDO, Oct. 26—Charges that unsanitary conditions exist in the Maumee Valley hospital polio unit were termed "unjust" today by three masked and gowned city officials who inspected the ward.

The three official, Mayor Michael V. Disalle and Councilmen William Galvin and Jerome Jesionowski, refuted charges hurled by Mrs. Iris L. Fisher, a nurse, against conditions in the contagion unit.

The mayor and the councilmen reported that all patients confined to the ward agreed that they had been treated well during their confinement. Some patients, however, did report they thought the unit could be kept cleaner.

12 Hurt As Bus Leaves Highway In Dense Fog

ZANESVILLE, Oct. 26—Twelve persons were injured today when a New York-to-St. Louis bus careened off Route 40, the National Highway, in a heavy fog two miles east of here.

Five of the injured were held at Bethesda hospital, Zanesville, for further treatment, but were said to be out of danger. The other seven, including Driver C. E. Bailey, 39, of Columbus, were released after treatment.

Highway Patrolmen said the bus, owned by American Bus Lines, went off the berm, tore up 100 feet of steel guard rail, tore the front off the grocery and filling station of Clifford German, and finally came to rest against the side of a hill, 302 feet from the point where it started to skid.

Representative Scoffs At Polls

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Rep. Kirwan (D) Ohio believes public opinion polls on the elections should be taken with a "great many grains of salt" and regarded as entertainment.

The Democratic national congressional chairman said today his statement was "prompted by the usual pro-Republican distortions of the polls."

Kirwan said that "honest and skillful as they may be, their records do not justify their being taken as anything more than entertainment."

Payroll Tax Decision Awaited

FREMONT, Oct. 26—The first decision on whether Toledo's one percent payroll income tax is legal will be returned early next week.

Sandusky County Common Pleas Judge A. V. Baumann postponed yesterday in Fremont a decision on the case until after the Nov. 2 elections.

Judge Baumann, appointed to hear the case by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant of the Ohio supreme court, stated he had received the final brief of J. Clayton Gibson, first assistant Toledo law director, and the supplement to an answer filed for Lawrence W. Angell of Adams Township.

Coroner Rules Death As Suicide

MARIETTA, Oct. 26—Coroner J. A. McCowan blamed carbon monoxide poisoning today for the death of T. H. McGlothlin, 36, and said the Marietta auto shop foreman apparently committed suicide for reasons unknown.

A state highway patrolman found McGlothlin's body in his car at a roadside park on Route 77 three miles north of Marietta shortly before midnight Saturday.

The patrol reported the motor in the car still was running and the exhaust pipe was linked to the inside of the auto by a bicycle inner tube inserted through a hole in the floorboards.

Businessman Loses Collection In Leaves

JAMES Adkins of East Union street had a heavy heart Saturday afternoon even though everybody all around him was having a grand time at the Pumpkin Show.

The youth, one of Circleville's young businessmen, is a carrier for The Herald and somewhere on North Court street, Jimmy lost a $5 bill, part of his weekly collection money.

He knows that the money might have fallen among a lot of leaves and maybe "lots of people have tramped all over the bill." If anyone found the lost $5 young Adkins would like to hear of it.

You see, that's just about a week's salary for young Adkins.

Darbyville

The W. S. C. S. will meet at the home of Mrs. Lydia Neff Wednesday night.

Darbyville Mrs. Ethel Miller has returned home after visiting with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Walker, Detroit.

Darbyville Miss Annette Thomas, who is attending Wilmington college, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Thomas.

Darbyville Mrs. Lillian Hott spent several days at the home of her daughters, Mrs. Paul Clark and family of Orient and Mrs. Wendell Renick and family of Columbus.

Darbyville Mrs. Jennie Beatty was hostess at a party held at her home in honor of her guest, Mrs. Nora Hill of Columbus, who formerly lived near Darbyville. Those present were Mrs. Nora Beatty, Mrs. Lillian Hott, Mrs. Ethel Miller, Mrs. May Sines and Mrs. Jane Heeter.

Claude Wing of Vinton County visited relatives here over the weekend.

Officials Deny Clinic Report

TOLEDO, Oct. 26—Charges that unsanitary conditions exist in the Maumee Valley hospital polio unit were termed "unjust" today by three masked and gowned city officials who inspected the ward.

The three officials, Mayor Michael V. Disalle and Councilmen William Galvin and Jerome Jesionowski, refuted charges hurled by Mrs. Iris L. Fisher, a nurse, against conditions in the contagion unit.

The mayor and the councilmen reported that all patients confined to the ward agreed that they had been treated well during their confinement. Some patients, however, did report they thought the unit could be kept cleaner.

12 Hurt As Bus Leaves Highway In Dense Fog

ZANESVILLE, Oct. 26—Twelve persons were injured today when a New York-to-St. Louis bus careened off Route 40, the National Highway, in a heavy fog two miles east of here.

Five of the injured were held at Bethesda hospital, Zanesville, for further treatment, but were said to be out of danger. The other seven, including Driver C. E. Bailey, 39, of Columbus, were released after treatment.

Highway Patrolmen said the bus, owned by American Bus Lines, went off the berm, tore up 100 feet of steel guard rail, tore the front off the grocery and filling station of Clifford German, and finally came to rest against the side of a hill, 362 feet from the point where it started to skid.

Representative Scoffs At Polls

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—Rep. Kirwan (D) Ohio believes public opinion polls on the elections should be taken with a "great many grains of salt" and regarded as entertainment.

The Democratic national congressional chairman said today his statement was "prompted by the usual pro-Republican distortions" of the polls.

Kirwan said that as "honest and skillful as they may be, their records do not justify their being taken as anything more than entertainment."

Payroll Tax Decision Awaited

FREMONT, Oct. 26—The first decision on whether Toledo's one percent payroll income tax is legal will be returned early next week.

Sandusky County Common Pleas Judge A. V. Baumann postponed yesterday in Fremont a decision on the case until after the Nov. 2 elections.

Judge Baumann, appointed to hear the case by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the Ohio supreme court, stated he had received the final brief of J. Slayton Gibson, first assistant Toledo law director, and the supplement to an answer filed for Lawrence W. Angell of Adams Township.

Coroner Rules Death As Suicide

MARIETTA, Oct. 26—Coroner J. A. McCowan blamed carbon monoxide poisoning today for the death of T. H. McGlothlin, 36, and said the Marietta auto shop foreman apparently committed suicide for reasons unknown.

A state highway patrolman found McGlothlin's body in his car at a roadside park on Route 77 three miles north of Marietta shortly before midnight Saturday.

The patrol reported the motor in the car still was running and the exhaust pipe was linked to the inside of the auto by a bicycle inner tube inserted through a hole in the floorboards.

Businessman Loses Collection In Leaves

JAMES Adkins of East Union street had a heavy heart Saturday afternoon even though everybody all around him was having a grand time at the Pumpkin Show.

The youth, one of Circleville's young businessmen, is a carrier for The Herald and somewhere on North Court street, Jimmy lost a $5 bill, part of his weekly collection money.

He knows that the money might have fallen among a lot of leaves and maybe "lots of people have tramped all over the bill." If anyone found the lost $5 young Adkins would like to hear of it.

You see, that's just about a week's salary for young Adkins.

Darbyville

The W. S. C. S. will meet at the home of Mrs. Lydia Neff Wednesday night.

Mrs. Ethel Miller has returned home after visiting with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Walker, Detroit.

Miss Annette Thomas, who is attending Wilmington college, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Thomas.

Mrs. Lillian Hott spent several days at the home of her daughters, Mrs. Paul Clark and family of Orient and Mrs. Wendell Renick and family of Columbus.

Mrs. Jennie Beatty was hostess at a party held at her home in honor of her guest, Mrs. Nora Hill of Columbus, who formerly lived near Darbyville. Those present were Mrs. Nora Beatty, Mrs. Lillian Hott, Mrs. Ethel Miller, Mrs. May Sines and Mrs. Jane Heeter.

lived near Darbyville. Those present were Mrs. Nora Beatty, Mrs. Lillian Hott, Mrs. Ethel Miller, Mrs. May Sines and Mrs. Jane Heeter.

Politics Cost

PLOWING SITUATION WELL IN HAND...

Plow-bottom soaked-down to work an honest 8 inches deep—and that's easy. The McCormick-Deering No. 8 plow is built to lay clean, uniform furrows, as deep as 10 inches. And the new Farmall C Tractor pulls one 16-inch bottom in heavy going—or two 12-inch bottoms in average plowing.

The Farmall C is built to power the diversified farm of 80 to 120 crop acres. Its upholstered seat, mounted on a coil spring and hydraulic shock absorber, gives you a "feather-cushion" ride.

There's a full line of simple, low-cost, quick-change implements for the Farmall C. All excess wheels, levers and pounds are designed-out of these implements—new strength, plus new ease and speed of changing from one implement to another, are designed-in.

All of the Farmall C's quick-change implements are under complete, two-way control—with Farmall Touch-Control. "Tell" the control with a finger-tip touch what you want done—instant-acting hydraulic power does it! See us now about a Farmall C.

1949 KAISER POWER

ANOTHER BIG STEP AHEAD BY THE MEN FROM WILLOW RUN

Ask any man at Willow Run about the kind of power in the new 1949 Kaiser! He'll tell you the new Kaiser DeLuxe has the highest compression engine you can get as regular equipment in any standard American car—bar none!

He'll tell you its horsepower is up for more mileage, and even more economy! He'll talk about faster pickup and getaway. And he'll tell you about the powerful new Kaiser dual throat carburetion—more miles for every gallon!

The men at Willow Run are mighty proud of Kaiser power. They believe they have the finest car your money can buy in any price class. They invite you to drive it—this very day! Come! Bring the family! Take the wheel for your own personal testing! Just phone any Kaiser dealer—or drop in at his showroom today for your own kind of "show me" test!

Why don't you drive a 1949 Kaiser today and find out?

YOU'RE INVITED! PHONE OR SEE THE KAISER DEALER NEAREST YOU. FIND OUT FOR YOURSELF!

McCLAIN NO PUSHOVER

Tigers Ready For Tilt Against Tough Greenfield

Circleville Red and Black football aggregation will face its toughest competition of its undefeated season Thursday night when it invades Greenfield Mc-Clain.

In addition to looking forward to winning its seventh game in as many starts in the Greenfield tilt, the Tigers will be seeking to put an end to the four-year winning streak over the local squads sported by McClain.

Greenfield's win streak began in 1944, with a count of 27-6 over the Red and Blackers. They posted, in succeeding years, scores of 20-9, 20-6 and 23-13 over local aggregations. Circleville won a game from McClain in 1943 by a meagre 8-0 margin.

Tiger footballers to date, sparked by the brilliant ground-covering antics of Left Halfback Harold "Sandy" Hill, have rolled to all but one of its seven wins with comparative ease.

The lone "toughie" was the tilt with Westerville, which the Tigers annexed 27-25 with some last-minute razzle-dazzle.

HILL FIGURES high in opposing coaches' defensive strategy, posing the most prolific threat of any back in the South Central Ohio league. After scoring three of the five Tiger touchdowns against Wilmington last week, which the Tigers chalked up on the win side of the ledger with a 34-13 final tally, and passing for the other two TD's, Hill was marked a "target" by the coach of powerful Washington
C. H. Blue Lions.

Fred Pierson, Lion coach, scouting the Circleville-Wilmington game personally last Thursday, was overheard remarking that he was "not much impres-sioned by the Circleville defensive" but believed "Hill probably is the most outstanding back in the league."

So far, Hill has scored 11 times in the six tilts, added 14 conversion points, and passed to another seven TD's.

Greenfield will be no push-over for Circleville. McClain is the last big hurdle facing the locals before they tangle with big, threatening Washington
C. H.

Many a downtown quarter-back is of the opinion Greenfield will be tougher than Washington
C. H.—primarily because:

(a) McClain always has been tough for the Roundtowners.

(b) McClain again will be pointed toward stopping Circleville's undefeated streak.

(c) There is a strong possibility Circleville will be caught off guard with too much confidence, could get clipped while looking over McClain with sights set on Washington C. H.

Trophy Dinner
To Be Staged Honoring Golfers

A "trophy dinner" is to be held Wednesday to honor title-winning golfers of Summer months.

Heading the list of those to be honored is John Jenkins, winner of the club championship match.
Jenkins bested Loyal Blankenship in the finals of the tourney to garner his title.

Also to receive awards will be Tom Eveland, junior membership champ; Mrs. Verlin Blankenship, ladies' handicap winner;
and Dr. W. F. Heine, Rodman Heine, R. L. Brehmer Jr. and Dr. C. G. Stewart, winners in the four-flight club handicap tournament.

Formerly containing red "caution" signals, in the reconditioned lights now all have the prescribed amber signal. All the lights now have the red "stop" light at the top of the box, and the green "go" light at the bottom, a less confusing system than the former haphazard system with each light different.

City service department reconditioned the lights during Pumpkin Show week.

11 County Quints To Show Wares

Final plans for a basketball carnival for Pickaway County Class B ball clubs were made at a meeting of coaches and superintendents in Ashville high school Monday.

The carnival is to be staged next Monday evening in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum, with the first game slated to begin at 7:30 p. m.

Each of the county's 11 high school basketball squads will play a 10-minute quarter to acquaint the fans with their 1948 prowess and the abilities of the other teams they expect to face later in the season.

Other purpose of the clinic is to introduce the 13 referees who will officiate at all county league tilts during the season.

JOHN HARDIN, county tournament manager for several years, was appointed carnival chairman at the meeting. Hardin said standard county game prices would be charged for the event, 40 cents for adults and 25 cents for students. He also said drawing for team position in the carnival would be held one-half hour before the first game.

Following play in the carnival, teams and officials will call time out to explain any new rules adopted this season and point out some of the chief causes for calling fouls.

Officials expected to work the county league this year are McClure Hughes, Leon Sims, Leonard Siegfried, John Heiskell, Junior Anderson, Joe Bell, Tom Bennett.

Steve Brudzinski, Art Deal, Dick Meick, Lawrence Fullen, Jack McGuire and Carl Liff.

Promoters Set Full Winter Ring Program

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Oct. 26—The Tournament of Champions announced plans today for a full winter season of boxing including matches with an important bearing on every division.

The middleweight title bout between Ray Robinson and Steve Belloise in Jersey City Dec. 2 is the next immediate objective of the T. of C.

At least eight more indoor matches are planned by the promoters before hitting the outdoor championship trail with Marcel Cerdan in June.

Already plans are under way for the following six bouts:

1. An over-the-weight fight for Cerdan in January against an opponent to be selected.
2. A welterweight title match between Robinson and Charley Fusari, who stopped Tippy Larkin last week.
3. A lightweight championship bout between Ike Williams, the holder, and Willie Pep, the featherweight king.
4. Gus Lesnevich against Lee Savold.
5. A Lesnevich-Freddie Mills light-heavyweight title match.
6. Rinty Monaghan versus Dado Marino for the flyweight championship of the world.

Babe Ruth Saga Ends At Burial

PLEASANTVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 26—The saga of George Herman Ruth, baseball's all-time home-run king, is at an official end today.

The body of baseball's greatest hitter was taken to its final resting place yesterday and buried on a hillside in the Gate of Heaven cemetery here.

Willie Pep Returns To Ring Friday; He's Tagged One Of Best

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Willie Pep, of Hartford, Conn., remains after all these years one of the best fighting machines ever produced in this country.

When he defends his featherweight title Friday night against Sandy Saddler in Madison Square Garden he will be going to bat for the 137th time, and will be the top-heavy favorite.

In all those starts the little titleholder has been beaten only once and held to a draw once. Sunny Angott, long-since retired, beat Pep on points in the long ago and he was held even by Jimmy McAllister.

Pep's forte is boxing coupled with speed. He dazzles his opponents with jabs and counters, and sometimes he doesn't only dazzle them but makes the wish they had stayed somewhere else.

NO IRISH LIMITATIONS

Michigan Explains Why Notre Dame Not On Card

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—They asked Fritz Crisler when his school was going to play Notre Dame in football, and the University of Michigan athletic director told them, in a polite way.

He didn't say "never," but he approximated it, at least the way football lifetimes come and go.

What Crisler did say, at The Chicago Herald-American's yesterday, is that Michigan is booked solid through the 1952 season. The reason he didn't say 1953 or 1954 or maybe 1975 was that Michigan is looking only ahead to '52 at this point.

Crisler explained: "Michigan, by Western Conference legislation, can play only nine games in a season. Six of these games, also by conference rule, must be against conference opponents."

"That leaves three non-conference games for us each. We feel impelled to play one of these games against Michigan State each year."

"Due to great concentrations of Michigan alumni both on the east and west coasts, Michigan has scheduled one eastern opponent and one far western opponent for each season through 1952. There's your nine games. We couldn't fit Notre Dame in—and I might say we don't have a particularly large number of alumni in South Bend, Ind."

THE WAY Crisler told it, it was common sense, and little or nothing else.

He didn't be sure, touch on the possibility of taking that game, say, for the eastern fans and making it Michigan vs. Notre Dame at Yankee Stadium, New York.

Of course, there is always the business about big conferences like the Big Nine not wanting to take football off the college campus, not wanting it to get out of hand.

Notre Dame, of course, is party to no such schedule limitations as is Michigan. The Irish manage to show up east and west at frequent intervals, and seem to be pleasing their alumni. Furthermore, there is no reason to suspect Notre Dame Coach Frank Leahy didn't mean what he said a year ago: "Notre Dame will play Michigan anywhere, at any place, any time."

Jersey Boxer In Hospital

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 26—A New Jersey boxer is in Rhode Island hospital today after being knocked out in the final round of his bout with Tommy Bell, of Youngstown, Ohio.

Doctors said Danny Martin, of Newark, is suffering from a brain concussion.

Martin, a middleweight, sank to the canvas in the tenth round after being hit with a vicious right to the head. When the New Jersey fighter was unable to continue, a doctor was summoned.

AAC Chieftain Wants Some Law On Pro Football

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Admiral Jonas Ingram, commissioner of the All-America Conference, made a three-point landing in the pro football war today.

Club owners of the infant AAC, who engaged in a bitter war for patronage with the rival National Football League, endorsed the old sea dog's summary of the situation, to wit:

1. The AAC wants peace.
2. However, if the NFL wants war, they can have it.
3. There will be no amalgamation of the two leagues.

The former Navy coach termed the current competitive and payroll skirmishing between the two circuits "stupid and childish" and further recommended the following cures as imperative:

1. A common draft to avoid competitive bidding that has doubled the average annual expense.
2. Co-ordinated schedules in cities where more than one team is situated.
3. A realignment of locales which cannot support more than one of two clubs.

On this last point, Ingram suggested the pooling of the three Chicago teams, the Bears, Cardinals and Rockets, into two teams.

Ingram's assurance that the AAC will continue to operate next year was endorsed by Art McBridge of the Cleveland Browns, Dan Topping of the New York Yankees and Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Pistol Experts Tied In Match For U.S. Crown

QUANTICO, Va., Oct. 26—An Army sergeant and a Marine captain squared off today in a precision-plus battle for the national pistol shooting championship.

Defending title-holder Huelet Benner, a technical sergeant from Fort Knox, Ky., faces Capt. Thurman Berrier of Marine Corps Headquarters in Washington in a test with .38 caliber pistols.

Also participating in the contest will be 22 other pistol experts although they moved into the background yesterday after Benner and Berrier ended the first day's shooting in an uncanny tie.

Both men shot an 878 out of a possible 900 score with 22 caliber guns.

Meanwhile, the National Rifle Association, which is sponsoring the matches, prepared to start a two-day rifle championship contest.

In addition, a ten-man U. S. pistol team and a group of 20 riflemen will be selected to fire records for international competition.

The rifle team is competing with Canada and England with the other group will fire in competition with South American countries.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—Freddie Dawson, 142-pound Chicago boxer, hoped today that all his fights as easy as his bout with Billy Justine, 141-pounder from Philadelphia.

Dawson knocked out Justine at just a little past the two minute mark in the first round of their scheduled ten round go last night. A right to the jaw was the deciding punch.

be disheartening to the up and coming young featherweights who would like to get their clutches on that title. He is only 26 years old and looks as though he might go on for another decade. He has been so consistently effective that it is hard to find opponents for him who will draw a payday into Madison Square Garden. He is always a top-heavy favorite and up to now has been unbeatable for a half dozen years.

In fact, that loss to Angott was a legitimate lightweight.

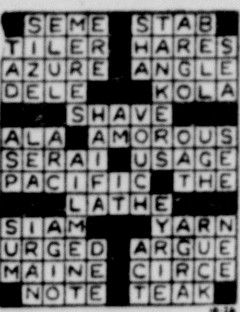

Friday night's set-to will draw a fast-sized gathering because the bout is for the title, promises 15 rounds of action and will find Pep back in there defending his crown for the first time in many months.

Additional interest is added by the fact that Saddler is a good stout hitter and might somehow get in some good punches.

Police Chief Lists 'Do's' And 'Don'ts' For Halloween

Outbuilding Tipping Is 'Out'

Fire Chief Adds His Warnings

"There will be no . . . harrump . . . outbuildings . . . tipped over in Circleville this Halloween," prophesied Police Chief William F. McCrady Tuesday.

Another of his predictions was that at the first sign of vandalism of any kind he would fill his office with the miscreants.

The chief has set up a system of Halloween regulations, ruling out the 'tipping' and soaping of windows heretofore traditional and synonymous with the Halloween festivities.

"I'm going to set up a list of
'don't' for this Halloween," says the chief. "The list of 'don'ts' would take all night to fill out."
"The 'do' list includes ringing doorbells; throwing corn (shelled), tic-tac-toe, costuming, using pumpkin faces or engaging in any other kinds of 'little mischief.'"

HE SAID, however, that
"soaping windows is definitely on the 'don't' list, along with any other form of property damaging antics."

"Most important of all," concluded the chief, "be cautious—
when you see the patrol car coming, don't run pell-mell through yards and across streets endangering yourselves. If you follow the rules, you'll have nothing to worry about—and even if you don't, being caught is the least of your worries."

Fire Chief Talmer Wise also admonished against foolhardiness during the "spook night," citing Circleville youths to be careful with matches around leaf piles.

Wise said the leaves now on Circleville streets would burn like tinder at the first spark.

Four Men Face Robbery Count

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Armed robbery charges were expected to be filed today in Columbus against four men in connection with the $7,000 robbery of the Tschappat jewelry store.

The quartet captured in Cincinnati last week were Thomas
E. Dickerson, 25, and John G.
Reed, 24, both of Niles, and Clarence W. Marcum, 25, and Joseph Werth, 50, both of Cincinnati.

Cincinnati police said Dickerson and Reed also have admitted holding up a Kentucky liquor store and terrorizing a suburban Cincinnati couple they robbed of $300.

The men are to appear in Columbus municipal court tomorrow.

Reed, Dickerson and Marcum were wearing some of the jewelry taken in the daring daylight holdup of jewelry store proprietor Frank Tschappat, and more of the loot was found in Mar-cum's home.

Employment Law Report Deadline Is Next Monday

Employers subject to the Ohio unemployment compensation law have until midnight Monday to file tax reports and payments for the third quarter of this year.

C. C. Thomas, manager of the Pickaway County Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office, warned that reports and payments must be postmarked Nov. 1, or earlier to avoid penalties imposed by law.

Generally speaking, employers covered by the Ohio Law are those with three or more employees.

Among employers exempted from coverage and payment of the unemployment tax are charitable institutions, governmental units, private and parochial schools, those engaged in agriculture and those who employ domestics.

Employers who fail to get their tax reports in by the Nov. 1 deadline will be subject to a $5 penalty fee for each 30 days they are late up to a maximum of $25.
Those who do not get their tax payments on time will have to pay an interest charge above and beyond their normal tax rate.

Customer Isn't Always Right

AKRON, Oct. 26—The next time Charles A. Himebaugh of Akron befriends a hitchhiker may be slow in coming.

Himebaugh told police he was closing his grocery store last night when the last customer in the store asked for a lift.

When the two got in the store's delivery truck, Himebaugh said, the customer pulled a gun, took command of the vehicle, and pulled away with $200.

County Teachers Plan Attending Dayton Confab

Pickaway County teachers will be among the 8,000 instructors expected at the 77th annual session of Central Ohio Teacher's Association conference in Dayton Friday.

Circleville public school instructors will not attend the session, having discarded it in favor of a "visiting day" later in the year.

George D. McDowell, county superintendent of schools, is to head rural superintendents committee conference, which will feature an address by Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell entitled "The Flaw in American Education."

Other committee chairman from Pickaway County is A. A.
White, instructor at Monroe Township. He will head a geography conference, with concluding address by Dr. W. R. Mc-

Columbus Has Parking Muddle

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—Columbus' muddled city bus-delivery truck parking problem appeared even a bit more mixed today.

Local trucks were prohibited from stopping in bus loading zones shortly after the zones were enlarged and the buses ordered to stop close to the curb.
Last night the city council partially reversed itself and said the trucks could make deliv-

Good Neighbor...

In scores of communities all over the Norfolk and Western system, men whose caps bear the familiar word, Agent, every day touch the personal lives of thousands of folks who live in those towns.

The principal job of the station agent is to receive and dispatch freight, sell tickets, and in the smaller communities, handle express. He plays a big part in the movement of the vast variety of goods required by people in every town . . . in your town . . .

The double feature which played last night at your neighborhood theatre may have been handled by him before it reached the projection booth. The baby chicks, which next year will supply Mrs. Jones' family with fresh eggs, only yesterday chirped on the baggage wagon at the station. Machinery for the new plant at the other end of town was received first by the station agent. The trained setter, which Bill Smith will take into the field this Fall, got a welcoming pat on the head—from the station agent. And in smaller towns, the telegram which read ". . . twins . . . mother and sons doing fine . . ." also may have been received and delivered by the man with the little sign on his cap.

But the local station agent is more than a railroad man in your community. He may be a member of the town council, scout master of a local troupe. He may assist in the Community Fund campaign, or be an officer in your church.
Wherever he is, he's your neighbor and fellow citizen . . . and we like to think of him as a good neighbor and a good citizen.

The Norfolk and Western Railway recently was awarded the Harriman Memorial Gold Medal for making the outstanding safety record among the large Class I railroads of the nation in 1947. This marks the fourth time the N. & W. and its employees have won the highest honor in railroad safety.
